

PRINCE LATE FOR SCHOOL

The eight-year-old heir to the British throne was 30 minutes late for school today. But Bonnie Prince Charlie had a good reason—newsmen anxious to record his second day at the "outside" school delayed him. He took one look at them and went back to Buckingham Palace. He returned later in a car accompanied by a governess and a detective. The prince Monday became the first heir to the throne to attend an ordinary school instead of learning from private tutors. He is pictured leaving school after the first day. Accompanying him, right, is school's headmaster. In background is governess. (AP Wirephoto.)

SKATING RISKY

Snow Flurries Wednesday

Minor snow flurries Wednesday, and rain mixed with snow, were predicted today by weatherman William Mackie. There was some snow today, he said, caused by the passage of a mild storm. He forecast partial clearing tonight, then thickening cloud Wednesday with the approach of a new storm. Minimum temperature tonight will be 34 degrees, and a maximum of 40 is expected Wednesday. Winds to night will be southwesterly, then dying down and becoming easterly Wednesday.

Warm air and sunshine Monday, and temperatures just barely in the freezing level overnight, combined to cause considerable thawing on the many ice surfaces in the Greater Victoria district. Skaters were out in force Monday night. Police banned skating on Goodacre Lake in Beacon Hill Park, but there were skaters on Swan Lake.

French Plane Crashes; 57 Aboard

PARIS (Reuters)—A French airliner with 57 persons on board crashed tonight at Orly airport. The plane crashed on landing at the end of a regular flight from Tunis to Paris. It was not immediately known whether there were any casualties.

23 DAYS IT 'MEOWED'

There Just Wasn't Any Kitty After All

SANDRA CARTA sits besides one of many holes punched in her $20,000 house where a "cat" meowed behind the walls for 22 days. (NEA).

GLENDORA, Calif. (AP)—You could have knocked over the Vincent Carta family with a cat's whisker today. There wasn't a cat in their house wall after all. For 24 days the Cartas had been hearing meows coming from the wall. They knocked holes in the walls. They called "Kitty, Kitty." They put out saucers of milk. No cat. And they had suggestions from everyone who professed to know how to get cats out of walls. It got so bad they disconnected the phone. With the Cartas at the end of their rope and the cat presumed near the end of its nine lives, Roger Adams, a sound engineer, and Ole Hammer, a water system expert, tried their hand today. Using sound devices, they tracked what sounded like a faint meow in the bathroom wall to a water meter. They turned off the water meter—no meow. They turned on the water—Meow. The Cartas sighed in relief. Now all they have to do is have the defective meter repaired and patch up the holes in the walls.

QUEBEC HOTEL GUTTED; 10 FEARED DEAD

SOREL, Que. (CP)—Fire early today flamed through a 40-room hotel and five adjoining buildings in this St. Lawrence south shore industrial town. Police said damage may reach $500,000 and there may have been loss of life. There was on report that 10 persons lost their lives and a second that loss of life was six. "We don't know until we can get into the ruins to check," a police official said. "They are still too hot." Firemen blamed two overheated oil drums for an explosion that boomed out at 2:45 a.m. in the Chateaugay Hotel. The resulting fire was reported under control at 6:30 a.m., after more than 100 firemen battled it in near-zero temperatures.

Thief Takes Hostage—Both Vanish

Vancouver Bandit Uses Youth as Shield

VANCOUVER (CP)—A jittery bandit grabbed $14 from the cash register of a confectionery here Monday night and fled, taking a 17-year-old youth as hostage at gunpoint. Neither the bandit nor his prisoner had been located early today.

The holdup man threatened to shoot the unidentified boy if four other people in the Cambie Street store called police. Witnesses said he backed out of the shop holding a gun in the youth's back. The lad was "whimpering" as they fled on foot.

However, police said later they believe the youth was an accomplice in the holdup, and listed both the gunman and the hostage as suspects.

Mrs. Elizabeth Culver, wife of the owner, was operating the store alone when the bandit entered at 8:45 p.m.

She said "The fellow shrieked in a terrible voice. This is a stickup; don't move." He stood by the door, and he had a gun in his hand.

There were two women customers in the store and the youth, who had entered minutes previously.

DRAFT DODGERS?

Wilson's Charges Called 'Lie'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressmen and National Guardsmen today mangled the battlements over Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson's remark that the National Guard has been a "draft-dodging business."

Both senators and representatives defended the National Guard. Maj.-Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, National Guard Association president, called Wilson's remark "a lie."

Wilson told the armed services committee Tuesday that the politically potent Guard was a "sort of scandal" during the Korean War. He said the Guard was used by young men as a "draft-dodging business."

That started the uproar. Tito Rejects U.S. Visit BELGRADE (Reuters)—President Tito of Yugoslavia has decided not to visit the United States because of the "anti-Yugoslav campaign" now going on there, the official news agency Tanjug said Tuesday night.

U.S. Senators Order Probe Into Middle East Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate foreign relations and armed services committee voted unanimously today to conduct a complete review of United States foreign policy in the Middle East over the last 11 years.

The vote was 30 to 0. Senate Republican Leader Knowland said the White House and state department had no objection to the inquiry.

The action apparently cleared the way for ultimate senate adoption of a resolution giving President Eisenhower authority to use U.S. forces to combat any Communist aggression in the Middle East. The Eisenhower resolution would also authorize $200,000,000 of aid to Middle East nations.

The vote by the senate committee came as the House of Representatives began debate on the Eisenhower program with prospects of its approval in that body Wednesday.

Republican Leader Joe Martin of Massachusetts said he thought there was a chance, in fact, of a House vote late today.

Sandys-Wilson Talks To Restart Arms Flow?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Talks continuing here today may result in the first substantial flow of American arms to the United Kingdom since the Second World War, as well as a sharing of U.S. experience in production and use of the new weapons. The accent appeared to be on missiles as British Defence Minister Duncan Sandys and U.S. Defence Secretary Charles Wilson conferred here for the second day.

Wilson, in addressing NATO defence ministers in Paris Dec. 14, said that the U.S. is prepared to assist allies "who are willing and able to develop their own modern weapons systems." He offered also to "make available promptly certain items of modern weapons and equipment along with appropriate technical data."

Canada Backs U.S. Position

(From Times News Services)

The critical situation in the Middle East where Israel has not yet withdrawn its troops from Egyptian territory it captured last year was slowly drawing to a head today. There were these developments:

1. In the United Nations' General Assembly, Canada's External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson again threw his country's support behind the original United States proposal for a buffer between Israel and Egypt, garrisoned by UNEF troops.
2. A leading Arab spokesman said if Israel continues to defy the UN withdrawal order it means war in the Middle East, and possibly world war.
3. In Cairo the Egyptian deputy foreign minister declared UNEF forces will get out of Egypt once Israel has withdrawn, but gave no basis for this assertion.
4. King Saud of Saudi Arabia arrived in the United States, where the government is endeavoring to woo him to the Western cause.

The main spotlight was on the United Nations. In throwing Canada's support behind the United States plan, now part of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld's proposals, Mr. Pearson told the General Assembly that "the alternatives are so threatening that we must put every effort towards reaching an honorable and peaceful settlement."

He endorsed Henry Cabot Lodge's stand that an immediate Israeli withdrawal must precede further action in the UN on a long-term settlement.

Pearson said the UN should be associated with steps to replace Israel's suggested civil administration in Gaza. With regard to Aqaba, he gave Canada's backing to Lodge's statement that the UN Emergency Force should be stationed on the Gulf of Aqaba to separate Egyptian and Israeli forces and to govern navigation in waters having such an international interest.

Pearson said the problem with which the assembly had been dealing now is coming to a head with consequences of vital importance to everyone and perhaps even for peace.

It was not only a problem of an Israeli withdrawal, though that was the first order of priority. "It is the problem not only of making arrangements for security in the unsettled border areas and for free navigation but for making such arrangements here which will be agreed on in this assembly but which would take effect only after Israel had accepted the decision of the United Nations to withdraw."

Pearson said many delegations would have great difficulty in accepting the position that the assembly could take no decision until after the withdrawal itself.

Middle Course Suggested by Pearson

"If, on the other hand, Israel does not agree to complete an immediate withdrawal and to a proposal for a reasonable solution of related problems which would be acceptable to these problems, Israel would be in the position of having taken the responsibility of having rejected the decisions of the United Nations and remaining where she is without any international support," Pearson said.

In the interests of peace and security, Pearson suggested a middle course. "Certainly Israel has no right to attach conditions to the withdrawal of her forces but as delegates of nations to the assembly, I think we have the right and indeed the duty to relate these two matters—withdrawal and proposals which would make a situation such as we have been facing in the past three months impossible in the future."

Failure to agree on a middle course might mean not only a return to the unhappy conditions which might be even more dangerous to international peace.

Compliance with the armistice agreement was as important as compliance with recent resolutions, though any efforts to bring about larger compliance should be subsequent to efforts on withdrawal.

Before Pearson spoke, a leading Arab delegate, Fadel Jamali of Iraq, said Israeli defiance of UN decisions would lead to war in the Middle East.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov threw his support behind the Arab demands.

He called the U.S. policy "a new plan of intervention into the internal affairs of Egypt."

FISH-POWER FIGHT BLAMED

B.C. Lost Chance For Atomic Plant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry V. Warren, professor of geology at the University of British Columbia, said Monday B.C. has lost out on a "fantastic new industry"—the manufacture of U-235, a uranium by-product.

He told the Vancouver Board of Trade's ad and sales bureau the province missed out on attracting European governments to build an atomic plant here because of delay—due to the fish-versus power controversy—in deciding whether a huge new Fraser River hydro dam at Moran, 110 miles north of here, should be built.

The proposal by six European nations to build an atomic plant would have been perfect for B.C., he said.

Prof. Warren said the European group of countries and NATO were both interested in the suggested $500,000,000 dam.

At Brussels during the week-end, delegates from France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Italy agreed a joint $240,000,000 uranium separation plant should be built. A site for the plant has yet to be selected.

Premier Bennett declined comment today on Prof. Warren's statements.

Sinclair Peddling 'Drivel', Says Wicks

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks Monday lashed out at the "arrogance" of the federal government and accused Fisheries Minister James Sinclair of "distorting the truth."

A claim by Mr. Sinclair that tolls on the Lions Gate Bridge were being used to subsidize non-profitable bridges in the interior of the province was labelled "irresponsible drivel" by Mr. Wicks.

"Here was grossly garbled misinformation being peddled by a minister of the Crown," Mr. Wicks said in his strongly worded address over the CBC.

The labor minister said Mr. Sinclair's "malicious invention" had come from "within the thick shell of arrogance and unreality which has encrusted Ottawa."

"Under the barnacles—under the cloak of infallibility—under the thick hide of arrogance—all respect for the public has rotted away," he said. "And gone with it is all ability to gauge the public's requirements realistically."

Shorter Time Limit On Tax Probes Rejected

(From Times News Services)

An Opposition member proposed Monday that the government consider putting a one-year limit on the time in which it can reopen income tax cases of persons earning $10,000 a year or less.

A government spokesman opposed the suggestion, saying it would place undue restriction on the revenue department in investigating income tax assessments.

The proposal was voted down 92 to 55 by the House. Charles Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) voted with the Liberals against it. Liberals T. J. Kichham (Kings, P.E.I.) and Blake were six years.

Worried Themselves Into Grave

"There are many harassed taxpayers who have worried themselves into a premature grave over the problem of income tax," said Harry O. White (PC—Middlesex East). He introduced the resolution.

If a person submitted his income tax return to 10 different assessors of the revenue department's income tax branch "those gentlemen would come up with 10 different answers or maybe 20 if you went back a second time."

"Consequently, I think the time is long past due when some method should be established by which a definite and correct conclusion could be reached," Mr. White said.

He suggested taxpayers earning $10,000 or under be given a final settlement on their tax returns within 12 months from the April 30 date on which income tax payments come due.

But William Benidickson, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Harris, said Mr. White's resolution made no exception for cases of alleged fraud or misrepresentation. The revenue department should continue to have the right to open investigation of income tax returns when misrepresentation or fraud is suspected.

On this ground alone, Mr. Benidickson said, the resolution was "unworthy of acceptance."

Mr. White said the income range to which his resolution referred comprised the "vast majority of the productive enterprises of this country." Many feared that sooner or later "they will be hauled on the carpet and have their business transactions for years past" subjected to review.

Persons being prosecuted by the income tax branch "are considered guilty until they have proven themselves innocent," Mr. White said.

Education Grant Sparks Debate

Justice Minister Garson says provincial autonomy over education could not be maintained if the federal government made grants to the provinces for primary and secondary education.

He made the statement in opposing a resolution of R. R. Knight, former school teacher, that the government relieve the financial crisis in education by granting financial assistance to the provinces "for the expansion and equalization of educational opportunity across Canada."

Mr. Knight, CCF member for Saskatoon, said such grants would no more interfere with provincial jurisdiction in education than do federal grants to universities and vocational schools, veterans' education as-

Slipping Behind Other Nations

Mr. Knight said that while Canada is split on the constitutional question of federal aid for primary education, the country is slipping behind other nations, some of which are Canada ideologically. Federal assistance to education now had the support of labor, teachers federations, school boards and public organizations.

But Mr. Garson said it was not by accident that the British North America Act—Canada's Constitution—gave the provinces exclusive jurisdiction over education. This was a recognition that provincial control over primary education was necessary to preserve a province's religion, language and culture.

It was one thing for the federal government to make grants to universities which formed only a part of their over-all income. It was "a very different thing" to make contributions to provinces for use in their primary schools.

Colin Cameron (CCF, Nanaimo) said the government apparently regards that a small

Ontario Unveils Health Plan With Coverage for Every Payer

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government today unveiled a hospital insurance plan aimed eventually at assuring basic hospital accommodation for every resident of the province.

The complex plan is tentatively scheduled to become effective Jan. 1, 1959, almost two years from now.

Premier Frost emphasized that inauguration of the plan is conditional on acceptance by the federal government, which offered a year ago to assist financially in provincial hospital care programs provided they were launched by a majority of

Ottawa Would Contribute 35 Per Cent

The Dominion government would contribute about 35 per cent of the cost of the Ontario plan. The rest would come from premiums paid by those insured and from the provincial treasury.

Rates of individual premiums had not been decided.

The plan would be administered by the Ontario hospital services commission established last year, by the Blue Cross hospital plan or by a crown corporation similar to Blue Cross with personnel drawn from the Ontario Hospital Association.

In addition to standard ward care in active treatment hospitals, benefits would include in-patient diagnostic services, treatment in convalescent hospitals and hospitals for the chronically ill and specified out-patient services.

It would cover such extra services as operating room, delivery room, drugs and so on provided in hospital.

The plan would eliminate hospital deficits, lighten or remove from municipalities cost of hospital treatment for indigent patients.

Main Points of Difference Between B.C.-Ontario Plans

Main difference between the proposed Ontario health plan and BCHS is that Ontario plans a voluntary scheme.

The B.C. Hospital Insurance Plan introduced in 1949 was financed by premiums and was compulsory.

Difficulty of enforcing the act and other problems led to a new scheme in 1954 when premiums were abolished and the three-per-cent sales tax increased by two per cent to cover the costs. In the sense that everybody must pay the tax, hospital insurance still is compulsory in B.C.

Ontario also proposes to provide coverage by means of a small additional premium for mental illness and tuberculosis, which are not insured in B.C.

However the provincial government underwrites the cost of mental institutions and TB sanatoriums and inability to pay will not keep anyone from receiving treatment.

Because it plans to provide a broader coverage than B.C., Ontario will receive a smaller percentage of its costs from the federal government under the proposed agreement. Ontario will likely receive 35 per cent, while B.C. will get between 40 and 45 per cent of its costs if and when a national scheme is launched.

Decision on Courthouse Site in '57

A site for Victoria's new courthouse will be selected this year, Works Minister W. N. Chant said today.

Mr. Chant said he is awaiting a recommendation from the Capital Improvement District Commission on the location.

Final decision will be made by the cabinet and Mr. Chant indicated it is unlikely that anything will be done until after the coming session of the legislature.

Government-owned property at Belleville and Government and on Quadra across from Christ Church Cathedral are considered the most likely locations.

Public Bars On PEG's New Train 'Remote'

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—The chances of buying a drink aboard the Pacific Great Eastern Railway's new Cariboo Dayliner are "very remote," company officials say.

The PGE today begins operation of a Dayliner service which cuts 10 hours from the 460-mile trip between North Vancouver and Prince George.

General manager Joe Broadbent, aboard a pre-inaugural train which covered part of the faster (16-hour) journey Monday, said:

"We hadn't considered the possibility of serving liquor aboard the train. I don't think it works well for one thing."

"For another, we'll be getting a pretty rowdy bunch of passengers on this run—miners and the like."

Bill Stewart, general passenger agent and a non-drinker, said he couldn't see that serving liquor would be feasible.

The Dayliner service isn't specially designed for the tourist trade, Mr. Broadbent said, because of lack of accommodation at Prince George.

"It should, however, prove a great benefit to those residents and tourists heading for dude ranches or hunting resorts," he added.

RAF Pilot Who Sabotaged Own Jet Jailed, Kicked Out of Service

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—A British pilot today was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and dismissal from the RAF for deliberately damaging his jet bomber before takeoff to avoid attacking Egypt last November.

The sentence, subject to confirmation, was announced shortly after a court martial found tall, slim red-haired FO Dennis Kenyon, 24, guilty of "wilfully" collapsing the Canberra's undercarriage at the start of "a warlike operation in the air."

Kenyon, who pleaded not guilty, testified at the start of his trial Monday that he had accidentally pushed the wrong button because of nervousness on his first combat mission.

He admitted he had said originally he did not support Britain's policy in Egypt but added that this was only his excuse to cover up a "tragic mistake" at the controls. He also said he contemplated suicide after the accident.

Kenyon, who is married, said he arrived in Cyprus in mid-October with the possibility of an operation in the offing. He added:

"I was rather worried and with the approach of time, worry increased and on the day in question I was in a very excited condition, unable to sleep or eat."

Foot in Mouth

THE FRIENDSHIP OF THE English-speaking world has survived the disaster of Suez. It probably is strong enough even to survive the statesmanship of Mr. Dulles. But that, as the French say, will be formidable.

A foreign minister like Mr. Dulles has only one duty. It is to protect the interests of his nation abroad. Since they can be protected, in this shrinking world, only with the support of reliable foreign allies, the chief function and only possible method of a foreign minister are to cement those alliances and not to confound among the allies.

Both in function and in method Mr. Dulles has failed. The United States, according to President Eisenhower, faces increasing peril. And unquestionably it faces a terrifying loss of confidence among its closest allies and oldest friends.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the Democrats of the American Senate are demanding a reappraisal of foreign policy which, for Mr. Dulles, its administrator, will doubtless be agonizing. The leading Democrats are prepared to support the so-called Eisenhower Doctrine in the Middle East, though they consider it quite inadequate. Obviously, like many foreign peoples, they have lost confidence in Mr. Dulles.

This incipient revolt in the Congress poses a grave problem for the President. The Democrats control the Congress and their support is essential to all the President's policies.

Since 1939 the United States has maintained, under great political strains, a bipartisan policy in foreign affairs. The Republican legislators gave general support to the foreign policies of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. The Democrats have loyally supported Mr. Eisenhower. But today the bipartisan policy is in great danger, according to Washington correspondents, because many legislators (not all of them Democrats) distrust Mr. Dulles as the manager of the policy.

During the last few days Mr. Dulles has rubbed salt into the wounds of Suez. The records of diplomacy contain few gaucheries so brutal and unnecessary as his recent remarks about Britain and France. It is useless and dangerous, however, to regard his words as contrived insults. They were not intended, we believe, to be insults. They were intended to be a statement of American policy, and the facts of that policy—though Mr. Dulles seems incapable of putting them in reasonable language—are clear enough.

The policy assumes, in short, that the United States must attempt a reconciliation with the Arab world and, behind it, the great world of Asia. For that reason, the United States must never appear to approve the former policies of colonialism, so-called, enforced by such powers as Britain and France, even though those policies have long ceased to exist in Britain's case.

In showing its friendship for the Middle Eastern and Asiatic peoples it is essential for the United States to retain the friendship of Britain, France, Europe and the Western members of the Commonwealth like Canada.

Mr. Dulles, as a person, unfortunately has fallen between those two stools. In a desperate public relations job directed at the Arabs and other Asiatics he has antagonized many Western peoples, including many Americans.

If Mr. Dulles' latest testimony before the Congress must be taken as an accurate reflection of President Eisenhower's thinking, the Western world might well despair at a moment when it is returning suddenly, after a brief pause, to all the tensions of the cold war. But the President, and probably Mr. Dulles himself, are far more sensible than Mr. Dulles' testimony.

So, we may be sure, are the American people. And when the President and the American people realize what Mr. Dulles' public utterances are doing to the Western alliance they will find means of disciplining his tongue.

Meanwhile the foreign friends of the United States will be wise not to pay too much attention to his words. What matters is actual American policy and it will be made in the end by the President, a good friend of Britain. But clearly an adequate policy in the Middle East and elsewhere has yet to be made.

The Big Mortgage

MOST CANADIANS, REGARD-less of party, hoped that Mr. Diefenbaker would bring a new sense of responsibility, or at least a new idea of some sort, to the leadership of the Conservative Party. His recent national broadcast must have disappointed those hopes.

The St. Laurent Government certainly is open to valid criticism on many points. Mr. Diefenbaker, reverting to the tired old cry of "over-taxation", attacks the Government not for its faults but for its virtues.

He says that every man, woman and child in Canada has been over-taxed by $24 during the last year. This is his version of the Government's revenue surplus. And what does Mr. Diefenbaker suppose the surplus was used for? Does he suppose that it was frittered away and lost to the people? Of course not. He knows quite well that it was used to reduce the national debt, the mortgage weighing on every man, woman and child.

Would Mr. Diefenbaker say that a family enjoying unprecedented prosperity should not reduce the mortgage on its house when it might not be able to carry it conveniently in less prosperous times? Would he say that the family was over-taxing itself to ease the burden of its debt?

That precisely is what the Government is doing with the national mortgage. It would be irresponsible and profligate, under present conditions, if it did anything else.

Mr. Diefenbaker also has heard of inflation. He must know that a revenue surplus is a weapon against inflation but if he were in office he would not use that weapon. Yet he complains that the Government is promoting inflation.

Mr. Diefenbaker is quite right, of course, when he says that the Government's expenditures—its demand for goods and services—are inflationary. He would be quite right if he and his party were proposing to reduce those expenditures.

But, denouncing the Government as a spendthrift and a pickpocket, he and his party promise, by their new platform, to increase expenditures by a huge, incalculable amount.

All this, from an Opposition leader, is irresponsibility on a reckless scale. Ironically enough, it comes from a party which calls itself Conservative. The nation assuredly needs a conservative party but seems unlikely to get it from Mr. Diefenbaker.

The Battle of Words Continues

IT IS NATURAL THAT ANY inconclusive military operation should be the cause of argument for many years afterward, and the much-criticized Dieppe raid has been no exception.

The heavy cost of the operation—casualties were nearly 70 per cent.—plus the assessment of the results, has been placed against the knowledge of amphibious attack that was gained. No positive conclusion has yet been reached.

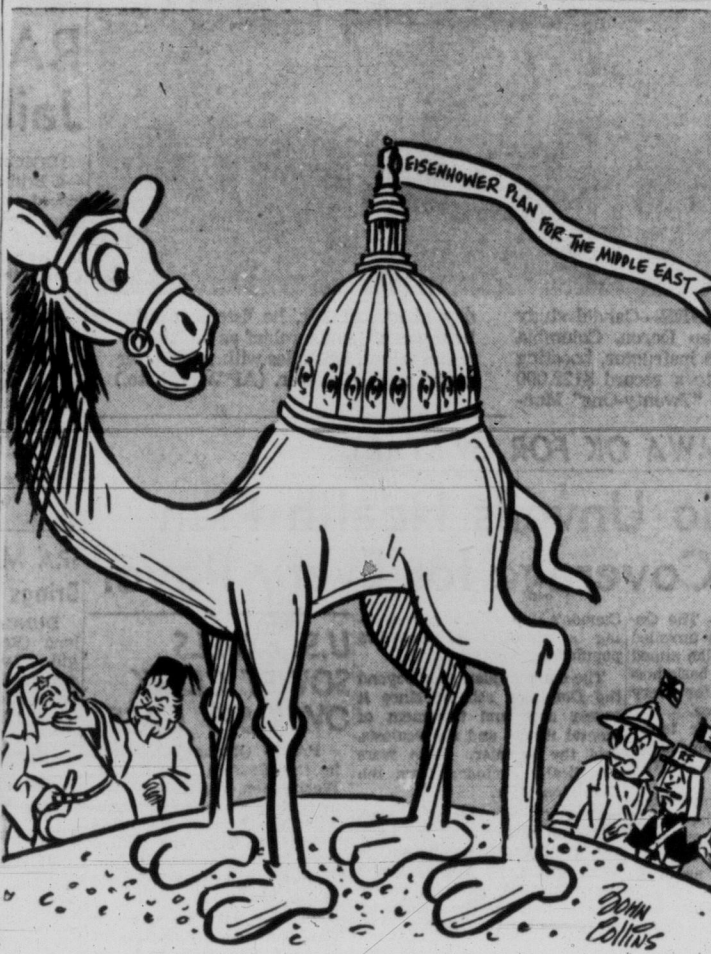

Of particular interest to Canadians, however, since the bulk of the attacking force was from this country, is the latest volume of the official history of the Great War which was released yesterday in London. The writer claims three serious defects marred the attack. He says much of the success of the plan was dependent upon surprise, which was unlikely to be achieved; supporting fire was inadequate for the job; and the plan was too complicated and rigid.

These accusations no doubt will call forth rebuttals. The argument is one for the experts. But no experts, either for or against the plan, will lessen the feeling of Canadians for the men who took part in the operation—the new troops who were "blooded" in this fight and who ably upheld the reputation which their fellow-countrymen of another age had made.

The man behind the rifle can have little concern with overall strategy or tactics. He is given orders, he carries them out. In many ways his individual job is much the same no matter what the fortunes of the whole command may be.

Thus though the experts may argue cause and effect Dieppe will remain an honored name in Canadian history, and the nation's regard for those who survived and those who did not will in no way be affected.

A New Hump for the Camel

REPORT FROM OTTAWA

By VICTOR MACKIE

Rising to the Bait

THE strategy of the Opposition in the Commons appears to be one of harassing and hounding the members of the Government with endless questions on the orders of the day. The question period has been daily getting longer and longer. It has seen Prime Minister St. Laurent, in recent days, growing obviously irritated and annoyed. Members of the official Opposition do not hide their satisfaction over the fact that they have succeeded in getting the Prime Minister to participate peevishly in many of the exchanges.

They are well aware that when a politician loses his temper, his chances of blurring out something that may be used against him in an election campaign are greatly increased.

Mackie

Concerned

Members on the Government side are not too happy at the tendency on the part of the Prime Minister to lose his temper and snap back, across the floor, retorts to jibes that in the cold print of Hansard might prove damaging. There is, too, concern that the Prime Minister at the ripe age of 75 is not adding to his peace of mind or wellbeing by allowing himself to be taunted into explosive outbursts.

The Prime Minister is not the only member of the Government who has allowed Opposition members to get under his skin. Other cabinet ministers in recent weeks have been stung to sharp retorts that could, if they are not careful, be used against them on the hustings. The classic example of the late Mr. King's peevish "Not a five-cent piece" comment should never be forgotten by cabinet ministers.

Strange Week

The Throne Speech debate covered a lot of ground. The House heard about the effects of the tight money policy on housing, construction and on eggs. Inflation has become a favorite topic of members on both sides and much more will be heard about it before the election and then again during the election campaign.

Travel

A total of $54,078 was spent by 18 cabinet ministers on traveling expenses during the 1935-36 fiscal year. At the head of the list was Agriculture Minister Gardiner with $7,111. Next in the travel parade were Fisheries Minister James Sinclair with $5,667; External Affairs Minister Pearson with $5,387; Health and Welfare Minister Paul Martin, $4,680; Veterans Affairs Minister LaPointe with $3,438; Labor Minister Gregg with $3,322; National Defence Minister Campney $2,960; National Revenue Minister McCann with $2,822 and Public Works Minister Winters with $2,885. The Prime Minister's travelling expenses were shown as $394. Other ministers were less than $2,000.

Fee

The Progressive Conservative member for Peel (John Pollett), addressed a question to Trade and Commerce Minister Howe recently in the House. He sought the benefit of Mr. Howe's opinion as to whether the policies of the Government had created inflation in this country.

Replied Mr. Howe with a grin: "My fee in this case will be quite heavy. I do not think I will offer an opinion free." The Opposition member retorted: "Is the minister aware that he is already receiving quite a substantial fee from the Canadian people for this service?" And Mr. Howe replied, "That fee is for other services."

Radio and TV

Prime Minister St. Laurent informed the Commons recently that his Government has not yet received the report of the Royal Commission on Broadcasting. No date has been fixed for the submission of the report to the Government. He promised to make copies available to the members of the House as quickly as possible after the Government receives the report—sometime later this session.

Library

The controversial novel "Ten North Frederick" by United States writer John O'Hara was tossed around, literally, in the Commons last week. George Hees, Opposition member from Toronto, enquired of Revenue Minister McCann if the latter had read the book yet and if so had he decided it should be banned from Canada? Dr. McCann retorted that the book was not yet in the country and so he had not read it. Gleefully Mr. Hees held two copies of the book aloft and tossed one to a page to take across to the minister who apparently was unaware that copies of the book are also on the shelves of the parliamentary library.

Avoids

"Is the minister not aware the book has been on sale in Ottawa book stands for the past month?" asked Mr. Hees. "No," snapped Dr. McCann, "I do not frequent or patronize the places that sell that type of literature."

A page boy placed a copy of the book on Dr. McCann's desk and it fell to the floor.

"Does the minister refuse to read the book? I just sent him a copy and he threw it on the floor," said Mr. Hees.

Dr. McCann retorted, "I rather think the page boy dropped it instead of placing it on my desk," a statement that Opposition members greeted with roars of disbelief. "I will read the book when it is brought to my attention officially by the people of my department," said Dr. McCann.

From Our Files

Jan. 29, 1897: A fire occurred at 415 this morning at 10 Figgard Street, a one-story building owned by Senator Macdonald and occupied by Chinese. The damage to the building is estimated at $400.

Jan. 29, 1917: A meeting for the purpose of organizing a retraining association for the municipality of Esquimalt is being held this afternoon. Some ratepayers claim the expenditures are too high.

Jan. 29, 1937: The provincial voters' list in all ridings will be completely brought up to date, but as yet the government does not know when the next general election will come, Premier Pattullo said today.

As Our Readers See It

Indiscreet

A certain great statesman has just said that "if he was a U.S.A. soldier in the Middle East he would feel much safer if he had neither British nor French soldiers beside him." Of all his vituperate remarks made recently this takes the cake!

I know how the British will take it in Britain. And just at a time when we should be united and strong. The boys in the Kremlin will rub their hands in glee!

It is such indiscreet remarks as these that have lost Britain one of the greatest statesmen that ever lived!

But for his swift action, this world, at the present time, might have been a burning, boiling cauldron of fire!

For Stamps

Somewhere along the way I must have missed a turn. I frequently visit the U.S.A. and deal whenever possible where stamps are traded—why? because the prices at such places are competitive and the goods earned by the stamps are goods "all found."

What is the difference between "cash discounts," "two for the price of one," "Spring sale," "Fall sale," and "green stamps" if the price of the commodity to the consumer is ultimately lower? There are firms in Victoria "price cutting" to day. What is the difference between this and giving green stamps.

Dealers in the U.S. who give green stamps tell me that the method has resulted in their business being in many instances doubled. This is a democracy I hear—why should merchandizing have a monopoly? Is private enterprise limited in B.C.? Are discount houses not illegal?

Avoid Desecration

Most Sanich taxpayers will agree that the property known as "The Gore," situated on Shelbourne Street and set aside years ago for the purpose of a park, should not be desecrated in any way by commercial encroachment.

The argument put forward that the park is small and has not been developed is immaterial to the fact that a definite understanding was given setting this parcel of land aside for a park.

Few residents of Greater Victoria realize that most local parks are not protected for all time by legal agreements, and a municipality may dispose of such property regardless of popular opposition.

Stronger protection of all our parks is absolutely essential, for vested interests will intensify their competition to secure available sites as this area develops.

Extra Cost of Blindness

Will you kindly allow me space in your paper to enlist the aid of your readers in getting the Federal Government to pass improved legislation for blind persons during this present session?

The Canadian Council of the Blind supported by The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, is seeking a special allowance for blind persons to compensate for the extra expenses incurred by blindness. Both of these organizations from coast to coast have endorsed the following resolution.

"Be it resolved that the Government of Canada be requested to pay all blind adults over the age of 18, a specific allowance free from a means test to take care of guiding and other expenses peculiar to blindness."

It is commonly stated that under certain conditions, two persons can live as cheaply as one, but it is not common knowledge that under conditions of blindness, one blind person often lives as expensively as two sighted persons. A blind person often has to pay to have little jobs done which the sighted handyman can do for himself. A blind housewife denied the opportunity of bargain hunting, and forced to have groceries delivered, finds her bill ten per cent higher than that of the sighted housewife. A blind working man, unable to travel alone to and from work, spends fifteen per cent of his income on facilitating his travels. Blind persons often have to pay to be guided around, to have material read to them; and to have letters written for them. Because he cannot see where he is going, a blind person finds the wear and tear of clothing more costly. Too, he finds the minor mishaps to which he is so subject, can be costly over a period of time.

It is erroneously thought that all blind persons receive a "pension." A Federal Provincial Blindness Allowance of forty dollars a month, subject to a strict means test, is available for those destitute between the ages of 18 and 59. It is received wholly or in part by only about one-third of Canada's blind population.

People in general are infinitely sympathetic toward the plight of their blind fellow citizens, and often feeling they cannot do enough to ease the burden of blindness will ask, "Is there anything I can do to help?" To them at this time, we would say, "Yes, indeed, there is something you can do, something vital, something which only you can do, and that is to write your federal representative, write to the Minister of Health and Welfare and to the Prime Minister, expressing your wholehearted support of the C.C.B. and C.N.I.B. joint request for the aforementioned special allowance for all blind persons to compensate for the extra expense of living incurred by blindness, and strongly urging the government to grant it."

If you will please do this immediately while the iron is hot—while Parliament is in session, it will immeasurably influence the Government to enact this required and much needed legislation.

FROM MOSCOW

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Extremely Human Beings

THE Embassy was one of the mon-strous former palaces of Moscow sugar millionaires which the Soviet government considers appropriate for the more important foreign representatives here. The setting was therefore surrealistic—vast rooms of wildly clashing styles positively writhing with carved marble and molded stucco and gilded and frescoed ornament. Against this fantastic background, the little party of Westerners seemed slightly out of place.

Yet the two ambassadors talked shrewdly about the Soviet economy. The food and the champagne were delicious. Altogether, it was rather like a particularly civilized picnic in the middle of a movie set left over from the earlier period of Cecil B. de Mille.

Back at the hotel, a French newspaperman and an Italian colleague were waiting for a nightcap. Both were rather typical European intellectuals, bearing in their different ways the scars of Europe's agony in the last war.

The Italian, who had been a pupil of Benedetto Croce, proposed as a topic the application to the Soviet Union of Croce's dictum that history is merely the story of human freedom.

Hopeful Precursors

Were the faint stirrings already discernible here the hopeful precursors of a hopeful evolution, which might take many decades but would end with a good result? Or would the iron silence of the night of the soul soon again descend upon this brave and vital people? The verdict, when the Frenchman went to bed at last, was on the whole in favor of a better human future.

By then the big party some Polish students were giving next door had reached a roaring climax, and Alfredo, the Italian, suggested joining the fun. The Polish hosts were already leaving, but Mirko and Jan, two officials of a Czechoslovak economic ministry on detached service in Moscow, had taken firm possession of the piano.

Mirko, an ex-bourgeois who must have been a bit uncomfortable during the attack on "rootless cosmopolitans" was a superb pianist with a repertoire of French songs borrowed—how long ago—from Yvette Gilbert. Jan was a tall, slender, powerful fellow with a great shock of dark hair, who rather strangely wore the tweed coat and slacks of an American college boy and sang the old Czech anti-Austrian songs with resonant passion.

The little smiling waiter had the Russian weakness for music. So the doors were shortly closed; more drinks appeared; and the waiter contributed "Volga, Volga" to the concert. The happy singing went on for hours in an atmosphere of easy, natural intimacy, "proving," as Alfredo remarked not absolutely logically, "that the human race will be perfectly all right if only governments will let the human race alone."

Even after that, there was a long political argument with Mirko in the bleak stairwell of the hotel, in which Mirko suddenly sounded less like a human being than a political gramophone record.

If these trivia are worth recording, which is doubtful, it is only because they suggest the violent and startling contrasts of a visit to Moscow. Foreigners here are insulated, and the insulation is all the more complete if you are a temporary visitor lapped in the luxury which Tourist most efficiently provides.

Expert Judgment

Such a visitor must largely accept the judgment of more expert and permanent foreign observers of the Soviet Union. And the most brilliant of these has said that his task is "like psychoanalyzing the actors in a play after watching them on the stage."

You elbow your way into the crowded, dreary shops. You trail behind the patient, cheerful queues of soldiers and young people who stare at the Kremlin treasures in popt-eyed wonder. You watch the hurrying, bundled-up crowds in the streets, and you note the marks their hard lives leave on most of them.

But you cannot get through to them, except in sudden flashes of human self-revelation which come when you least expect them.

If you are lucky enough, take lovely Swedish Anna out to dinner. Anna is superbly tall, charmingly fine boned and beautifully high-colored; and when she walks into a dining room full of rather drab people seeking escape in an evening of expensive luxury, they respond to her as they might respond to the sudden, delightful but incredible appearance of a bird of paradise.

Note of Pride

• Or fall into conversation with the demobilized officer at the next table, who still wears his shabby, insignia-less uniform. Hear the note of pride in his voice, when he apologizes for knowing only a few words of German, such as "hands up."

Or watch the look on Mirko's face when you remind him that 1917 was not only the year of the October Revolution, but also the year when President Wilson was converted to the great Masaryk's plan for an independent Czechoslovakia.

From such trifles you gather a not unimportant truth, that you may think the Soviet system as inhuman as you please, but that this mysterious system is still inhabited by extremely human beings. (Copyright, 1937, N.Y. Herald Tribune Inc.)

Flatfishing for Mines

LONDON—My wife and I are finding that at parties and on visits to the local pub we are popular with any Americans present. They make a bee-line for us. We are people they can have a chat with, without the fear of getting themselves into trouble.

Americans here who are in the diplomatic corps or attached to the services have been ordered not to discuss the situation with the English. One of them showed me the written directive to that effect. Since we're Canadians and therefore in the middle, it seems it's okay for them to sound off to us.

NEW BOOK. The Secret War, describes the work done during the past war of the Department of Weapons and Devices, the crazy exploits of which earned it the nickname of the Department of Wheezes and Devices. One of their weird plans: they experimented with the idea of catching flatfish, attaching small magnets to them and throwing them back into the sea so that magnetic mines laid by the Germans would be detonated by them.

TWO OTHER BOOKS being talked about are "Potter On America," some scathing comment by Stephen Potter, the Gamesmanship man, and "My Memories of Six Reigns by Princess Marie Louise, granddaughter of Queen Victoria."

Reburn

PEOPLE HERE are wondering just how long Stanley Matthews will go on being the greatest soccer player of all time. Age seems to be no limiting factor. Now 42, he persists in running rings around men half his age. In his latest outing, when England beat Yugoslavia 3-0, the man who was marking him—Stankovic by name—was brought to the point of frustrated frenzy in trying to keep Matthews in check.

As he would flash by with the ball at his feet, Stankovic would try everything, including grabbing his jersey, barging him and tripping him. Eventually, those of us who saw the game witnessed the ultimate in exasperation and something unique in international soccer. To stop one of Matthews' scintillating runs, Stankovic brought him to earth with a flying rugby tackle!

A DOG-AND-CAT FIGHT going on in the town of Slough, just outside London. The local council is the first to invoke the clause in the new Road Traffic Act that says that dog-owners can be fined up to $13.50 for not having their dogs on a lead. In future none of the town's 3,000 dogs make take a walk except on a lead.

"Unfair," says the Canine Defence League. "Why shouldn't a well-trained dog have a run around?"

Says the Cats' Protection League: "It's fine!"

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Low-Fat Cookery

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Nowadays, with many an overweight person trying either to look better or to lengthen his (or her) life, or to avoid a heart attack by lowering a high blood cholesterol, the question is "How to eat?" Often the question for the harassed housewife with a fat child or a husband with a high blood pressure is, "How to cook?" Such a wife will love the book on "Low-Fat Cookery" (McGraw-Hill, New York), just published by Evelyn Stead and Gloria Warren. They are married to two physicians at Duke University Medical School. They have worked out recipes for many dishes, now so designated that their calorie content will be much lower than usual. For instance, they have made a cherry pie that contains only eight grams of fat instead of the 93 grams usually found in this dessert. The authors say that in cooking, fat serves three purposes: first, it holds things together as in a salad dressing; second, it serves to separate things, as in pie crust where it is responsible for the flakiness, and, third, it serves to provide flavor as in the case of butter on baked potatoes.

This low-fat cooking is said to be no more difficult than ordinary cooking, and the cost is about the same. The Stead family have been eating these low-fat foods now for a year and a half, and the three children from eight to 12 years of age testify that the stuff tastes good and "goes to the spot."

SCIENCE IS ALWAYS ADVANCING

I am often amused when someone writes to "take the hide off of me" for gross ignorance. For instance, a while ago I wrote that I had been reading a lot of papers recently presented at a congress of hematologists (specialists in abnormalities of the blood) and had noted the statement of some of the experts that when a man with a slight tendency to bleeding marries a woman with a slight tendency to bleeding, some of their children are likely to have serious trouble, with a failure of their blood to clot properly.

Soon I received a number of scathing letters from people who wondered why I didn't know that only males are bleeders and women never are. They wondered why so ignorant a man was writing a column. The only trouble with these letter-writers was that they didn't know of the recent work by geneticists and blood experts who have found so-called "carriers" of the defect, and have found slight recognizable changes in their blood.

My correspondents did not know that a number of women bleeders are on record, and there does seem to be any doubt about them. Actually, I just heard from a woman who says she is a typical bleeder, and has had the diagnosis confirmed by blood experts at a great university. Another thing that my correspondents did not know is that there are a number of similar diseases marked by terrible bleeding. One is called the Christmas disease. Only an expert now can tell which disease a particular person has; and what is true for one of these diseases is not necessarily true for another similar one. All of which does not mean that every so often I will not "pull a boner." I have pulled some bad one in the past, and I will doubtless pull many more. I cannot always be omniscient!

As I wrote recently, many people feel that they can discount science and can throw it out of court because scientists are always admitting that they have made a mistake. Actually, in most cases it is not so much a mistake as the result of a growth of knowledge or an addition to the old knowledge. We scientists are constantly finding rare exception to old rules. But this is as it should be; we must keep learning and advancing.

STUDY WHEN WE ARE OLD

Opening my copy of the Stanford Review, I see that Mrs. Katharine T. Davis of the class of 1904 just received a degree of Master of Arts from the Fresno State College. Obviously, she—if she graduated first in 1904—must now be 70 or older. She says she wants to keep busy so, when her duties at home were done, she went back to college. She says she maintained a B plus average, and the only difficulty she experienced was that it took her a little longer to study and get things than it did when she was young.

In today's mail, my secretary found a letter from an irate woman who is out of all patience with the idea that any woman should want to find some useful work after her responsibilities are ended, and she has moved out of the big house into a small apartment. She fumes at the thought of anyone in that comfortable state foolish enough to go out hunting for a job. She thinks that any woman not soft in the head will just be happy to stretch out and rest! Doubtless many will feel that way, while others won't. Some will want to go on being useful, or they will find that to do nothing can be horribly boring. I agree with the wise writers who think that one of the most important ingredients of a happy life—old or young—is a feeling of usefulness.

More Dayliners Asked on E & N

NANAIMO (CP)—A proposal that three Dayliner trains operate in place of the present single Dayliner on the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway will be forwarded to the railway, the Board of Transport Commissioners and the B.C. government by Vancouver Island Ratepayers Association.

Chairman George Bonner drew up a proposed schedule to fit ferry arrivals. It calls for a Dayliner passenger, express, mail, and baggage service between Victoria, Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Courtenay.

Bids Called On Nanaimo Wharf Project

NANAIMO (CP)—An early start on construction of Nanaimo's federal government assembly wharf extension is assured.

The works department has called tenders on the project, cost of which has been unofficially estimated at $500,000. Tenders are to be in by 3 p.m., February 27.

The proposed addition will double the capacity of the wharf, which has a single berth.

Work is expected to start as soon as the department has selected a bidder, possibly before the end of March.

Roads Combed For Stolen Hotel Safe

CHEMINUS—RCMP here today continued their search for a 1,200-pound safe, containing about $2,000 in cash and $1,200 in cheques, stolen early Sunday morning from the Horseshoe Bay Inn.

Roads have been combed, and experts—from Victoria—have taken part in the search. Gerry Smith, hotel manager, said a guest had seen the safe at 3:30 a.m. Sunday, but that it was missing when he went to his office at 8 a.m. No unusual noises were reported.

Cmdr. Reynolds Vicar's Warden

Rev. George Harrington presided. Prior to the business session 82 members of the congregation sat down to a "pot luck" supper. Dinner and meeting were held in Brentwood Women's Institute Hall.

MISSION OF MERCY

Calf-Rescue Effort Brings Broken Ankle

HORNEY ISLAND (CP)—Living Mr. Chapman carried his home can be lovely on this lush Georgia on his back and then walked to the Strait island when the summer sun is shining, but in the dead of winter things can get difficult.

So Mr. and Mrs. Ethel Chapman found when they tramped back into snow-covered brush at 2 a.m. to rescue a cow and her new-born calf.

While they were carrying the calf on a stretcher and coaxing the cow to follow along behind, Mrs. Chapman slipped and fell, breaking her ankle.

Italian Firm Wins Contract To Build Ash River Turbine

B.C. Power Commission has awarded a contract for the supply of a 35,000-horsepower hydraulic turbine for use in its Ash River hydro development to the Ansaldo-San Giorgio Co. of Genoa, Italy.

The contract is the first ever to be awarded to an Italian firm by the BCPC.

The Italian company was low bidder, $235,543, and is able to make favorable deliveries, a commission spokesman said today.

Award of the contract came closely on the heels of the cabinet action Monday authorizing the commission to proceed with the $12,000,000 Ash River portion of its Somass project to serve the power-starved Alberni Valley.

WILL BE LIMITED

Because of the current discussions of fish problems on Sproat and Stamp Rivers, development will be limited to construction of a dam at Elsie Lake, marked (1) on the above map, a powerhouse on Great Central Lake, marked (2) on the map, that will include the Italian-built turbine, and the connecting five-mile tunnel and pipeline conduit.

It will involve construction of 27 miles of transmission line to Alberni.

Although the new turbine will be manufactured in Italy, it will be installed by Flanders Installations Ltd. of Vancouver.

Work is expected to start in the spring, and it is hoped to have the plant delivering power down to a "pot luck" supper. Dinner and meeting were held in Brentwood Women's Institute Hall.

Elsie Lake will be raised 50 feet by the dam. Shores will be Under construction are the 100,000-horsepower thermal generating station at Bare Point near Chemainus; an additional 35,000-horsepower unit at Ladore, and the Upper Campbell project that will give 42,000 horsepower by 1958.

87,500 HP

Full development of the Somass project would produce 87,500 horsepower.

Other main B.C. Power Commission units on Vancouver Island are the 168,000-horsepower John Hart hydro plant at Campbell River, and the Puntledge and Ladore stations of 35,000 horsepower each that are remotely controlled from John Hart.

Westwood Lake Land Deeded to Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—The B.C. Power Commission will turn over the 296-acre Westwood Lake property to Nanaimo today for $1.

The property, part of which has been converted into a lake by construction of a temporary earth dam, is to be used for recreation purposes.

The site, at the base of Mount Benson, draws numerous picnic groups in summer. It also is a popular trout fishing spot.

Jimmy Takes Playoff

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Jimmy Demaret shot a four-under-par 67 to defeat Mike Souchak and Ken Venturi Monday in a playoff for the $2,000 top money of the $15,000 Thunderbird Invitation Golf Tournament.

Demaret's round of 32-35-57 was a walkway.

Souchak had 75 and Venturi 76 in the playoff. The trio tied at the end of the regular 72 holes Sunday.

Demaret, leading off with three straight birdies, was never behind. Demaret had a four-under-par 32 and took a five-stroke lead over Souchak and seven over Venturi. San Francisco's newly-turned pro.

The three pros, playing Thunderbird's par 36-35-71, 6,843-yard course, finished the regulation 72 holes Sunday tied at 273.

Demaret sank an eight-foot putt for a birdie on the next and then gave the gallery a thrill when he drilled in a 36-footer.

SOUCHAK BIRDIED FIRST

Souchak birdied the first hole with a 14-foot putt.

Venturi had par for two holes and then hit out of bounds on the third for a two-over-par seven. He missed a 30-inch putt and took another one over par on the fourth. He had still another one over par on the sixth and got his lone birdie of the nine holes on the seventh. He hit up 14 inches from the cup and made the putt.

Demaret shot two more birdies, or the seventh when he chipped up four feet from the pin, and on the ninth, when he holed out from 12 feet away.

Both Demaret and Souchak missed the green on the short 17th and were one over par. They hit almost into the front of a hole bordering the course. Souchak had a poor tee shot on the third and took another one over par.

Scots Curlers Slice Deficit

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Touring Scots-curlers scored a 57-42 win Monday over five composite New Brunswick teams, cutting their aggregate deficit in Strathcona Cup play to 197 with but two matches left in the 20-game series.

Canada has 1,030 points, compared to 833 for Scotland. The Scots play in Dartmouth today and wind up their Canadian tour in Halifax Wednesday.

The chance of the Scots retaining the Strathcona Cup is slim. They took the trophy in 1919 and retained it in 1950.

Scores Monday:
A. A. Mayers, Falkirk, 11-6 over C. G. Malcolm, Saint John; W. G. Piper, Perth, 14-8 over Dr. C. Baxter, Moncton; J. McWhirter, Ayr, 15-5 over R. W. Crocker, Newcastle; J. O. Mitchell, St. Stephen, N.B., 9-5 over M. Mitchell, Douglas; R. S. Dickie, Moncton, 14-12 over J. F. Waugh, Scotland.

HIRE CIRCUS CLOWN

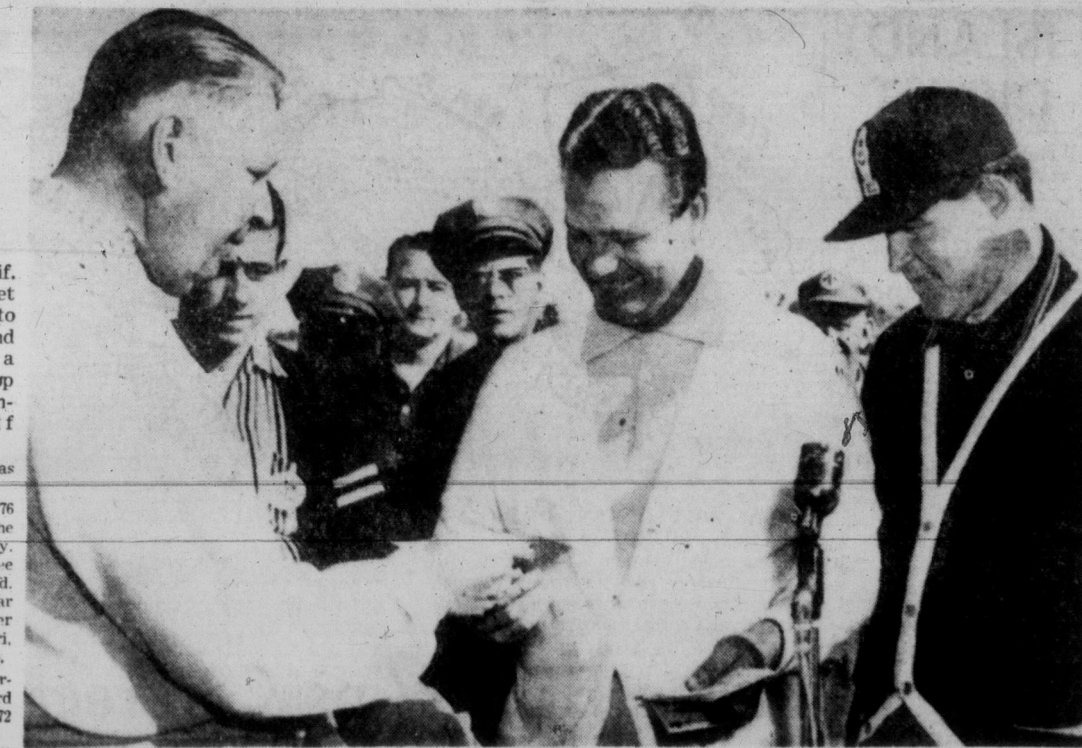

Dodgers Make Sure Of Getting Laughs

BROOKLYN (AP) — The daffy Dodgers, whose outfielders sometimes get hit on the head with a fly ball and whose base runners have been known to wind up three on a bag, have decided they don't get enough laughs. So they have hired a clown.

With a completely straight face, Walter O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, announced Monday he had signed Emmett Kelly, renowned clown of the Ringling Brothers circus.

Kelly's new job won't be to play baseball. O'Malley was quick to add, but, as he put it, "to ease the tension at Ebbets Field."

The bulbous-nosed laugh-getter will perform for the Dodgers strictly in character — that is, in his tattered suit and with

Morrisons Must Beat D & D Tonight

Morrisons, running out of reprieves in the best-of-five city senior B basketball final, will attempt to cool off the red-hot Dickinson & Dunn squad tonight at 8:30 at Victoria High School gym.

D & D won the first two games of the series, 59-43, and 60-29, and can wrap up the title for the second straight year with a victory tonight.

Bears Acquire New Goalie

TORONTO (CP) — Hershey Bears of the American League, short of a netminder since Boston Bruins traded Norm Defelice away, have a new goaltender in Gerry MacNamara. He was sent to them by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Gil Mayer, Hershey's other goalie, is laid up with a bad knee. MacNamara had been with Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League.

PAIGNTON, Eng. (Reuters) — Guy's Hospital beat Paignton 10-0 in a Rugby Union match here Monday.

BIRISTO, Conn. — Chino Vejar, 153, Stanford, Conn., stopped Cecil "Buddy" Barabara, 155, Virgin Islands, 4.

The bull-necked Utah boxer gave that impression Monday night by lathering rugged Canadian Wilf Greaves, formerly of Winnipeg and now of Pittsburgh, for a unanimous 10-round decision in a non-title and overweight slugfest in the Utah Fairgrounds Coliseum.

It was Fullmer's first bout since he dethroned Sugar Ray Robinson, January 2, at New York city. While Fullmer won the unanimous nod, he was unable to floor the courageous former Canadian amateur champ, who was making only his 16th appearance as a professional.

Fullmer used his usual bruising, boring-in style to carry the fight most of the way. But the plaudits of the 3,000 fans went to the visitor whose red and bruised body evidenced a thorough pounding at the hands of the champion.

The Utah favorite, weighing 160½, took command in the fourth round, but only after Greaves, weighing 162, opened a small cut over his left eye in the first round.

AT CLOSE RANGE

After the third, Greaves, who has a style similar to the champion, was content to slug it out at close range. While he was on the receiving end of the champ's devastating body attack, Greaves won the raves from the fans for his fine retaliation.

Fullmer definitely showed he was not in top condition by demonstrating a lack of timing.

But Fullmer cut Greaves' eye in the fourth and continued to pile up the points thereafter.

The champion had an excellent round in the sixth when he widened the cut over Greaves' eye with jolting left jabs to the head and face.

Fullmer had another wide margin in the seventh when Greaves began to show the effects of the beating.

Fullmer tried desperately for a knockout in the last three rounds, but the 21-year-old Greaves would not break under the punishment.

Greaves slipped to the canvas in the ninth and Fullmer slipped down in the 10th on a barrage of blows thrown by Greaves.

The balloting on the fight showed referee Ken Shulsen scoring 91 for Fullmer, judge Del Markham scoring 6-31 for Fullmer, and judge Bob Yokum tallying 7-3 for the West Jordan, Utah champ.

United Press had it 8-2 for the champion.

It was Fullmer's 39th professional win against three losses.

SAWCHUK WILL BE BACK, BOSTON PAPER REPORTS

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Record reports it has learned that goalie Terry Sawchuk soon will return to Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. Sawchuk quit the team because of nerves Jan. 19 which led to the acquisition by the Bruins of Don Simmons from Springfield of the American League.

The Record story says Simmons and Sawchuk will be platooned for the rest of the season.

When asked about the Sawchuk case, Boston general manager Lynn Patrick replied: "I don't know anything about it. I haven't spoken with him since Jan. 5 when I left on a scouting trip of western Canada. I tried to talk with him once, but he wouldn't. I expect to hear from him, but I have no inkling when. I just have a hunch that he'll get in touch with me."

NEW RULE MAY HELP

Ted Sets Sights On Batting Title

By OSCAR FRALEY

MIAMI, Fla. (UP) — Ted Williams, baseball's greatest hitter, today modestly identified Mickey Mantle as "the best batter of this era" and added that the New York Yankees again would be the team to beat for the American League pennant.

Williams, lean, tanned and fit, will go to Boston on Friday to sign his sixth contract at an estimated $100,000 for another season as the big stick of the Boston Red Sox. And the four-time batting champion left no doubt but what he expected to give Mantle a run for the crown in the coming season.

"Mantle surely was entitled to the batting championship," said Williams of the Oklahoma kid who won the American League title with a .359 mark against his 345 percentage and a lifetime average by .348.

"Mickey is certainly the best hitter of this era and should wind up as one of the all-time greats," Ted added with conviction. "But I am sure that, the way I feel, I can play at least 100 games this season."

"ABOUT 25 HOME RUNS" — Ted also grunted that he "thought" he could hit "at least 330 and maybe bang about 25 home runs."

"Meanwhile," he added, "I'm going to try to beat that young fellow from the Yankees out of the batting championship — and the new rule which includes bases on balls in the necessary 475 times at bat doesn't figure to hurt me too much."

As one of the perennial leaders in walks, Williams figures to benefit greatly from the new ruling. With his walks being counted, he won't have to go for the bad pitches coming down the stretch to get the previously-needed 400 at-bats necessary to be eligible for the batting championship.

Williams, always a forthright talker, asserted that the American League pennant race was "between the Yankees and seven contenders."

Oak Bay High Wins Opening Hoop Game

Oak Bay High School got away to an impressive start in the Inter-High School Senior Girls' Basketball League, Monday, by defeating Mount Douglas High, 14-2, at Oak Bay Junior High School.

The Oaks flashed a strong defence that held the Mount Douglas squad without a field goal. Both Mount Douglas points were scored on four shots.

Other teams in the league are Mount View, Esquimalt and Victoria High.

Blaze Dislocates City Pin Tourney

May Force Move to Strgthcona

Victoria City Tenpin Association has temporarily found itself without a place to hold the city championships this weekend, following a fire at Gibson's Bowldrome early Monday morning that razed the lower floor of alleys.

Championships were to be held this Sunday and the following Sunday at Gibson's. Decision must now be made whether to seek permission from American Bowling Congress headquarters in Milwaukee to use the 20 upper floor alleys at Gibson's, which are non-ABC sanctioned, or move the championships to Strathcona, which has 12 tenpin alleys available.

Association secretary Ron Wilson, who is handling the tournament, has called a committee meeting for tonight to seek a solution.

Approximately 35 leagues have been idled by the fire. League secretaries and presidents are expected to await the outcome of tonight's association meeting before making plans, possibly for a split-week schedule on the upper alleys.

Manager Roy Begg of Strathcona reports that he is ready and able to take over the city championships if the association so desires.

"We're all set to go," he said Monday. "We have new pins on hand and we wouldn't have any trouble handling the tournament at all."

Also affected are the city zone singles championships March 2-3 and 9-10, and the B.C. singles championships here on March 16-17.

Both the zone and the B.C. roll-offs are scheduled for the two alleys, but it is doubtful if Gibson's will be ready by then.

Manager Rod Hendry first put an "indefinite" label on the length of time for the lower floor to be back in operation, but it appears now that the alleys may be functioning within seven weeks or two months. It all depends on the time required to receive equipment and material from the east. Extensive repairs must be made to 14 of the 20 alleys, with most alleys requiring almost complete relaying.

Gibson's two leading tenpin leagues, the senior and the commercial, will be out of business this week for sure.

Manager Begg at Strathcona has offered to handle the eight-team senior league on his alleys, on a split-schedule basis, but the 20-team commercial league is another matter. He may be able to squeeze it in on weekends.

Bill Haslam with two first-period goals and Arne Johnston with a second-period marker gave the Combines their slim margin. Gannie and K. Walz scored for the Flyers in the third.

DUKE SCORES TWO

Stampeders Sink Woeful Warriors

WINNIPEG (CP) — Calgary Stampeders kept Winnipeg Warriors disorganized with close checking to win 2-1 Monday night in a Western Hockey League game before 2,296 fans.

Dave Duke scored both Calgary goals, while Murray Wilkie got the Winnipeg marker.

The game made no difference in league standings, with Calgary staying third behind Edmonton and Brandon in the Prairie division and the Warriors in last place.

Warriors started with a rush. Wilkie drew goaltender Hank Bassen from the nets and fired over him at 3:02 of the first period. However, Duke evened the count at 11:54 of the same session and added his second goal at 15:52 of the second.

Duke's first goal came after several minutes of hard-hitting, fast hockey when he rode straight in on Ed Johnston and found an opening from six feet out.

In the second period, Warriors, especially Wilkie, were hitting harder and made Bassen work with some hard shots.

DUKE AGAIN

Then Duke pulled almost the same play that gave him his first goal, grabbing the puck as it bounced off a Warrior's stick and sailing in again to fire it into the net knee high from just outside the crease.

In the third period, Stampeders turned in an able job of protecting Bassen and their one-goal lead. Only six penalties were handed out during the game, which was marked by a couple of minor scuffles in the corners.

Curlers Seek Impetus for Brier Bid

A strong Vancouver Island delegation will head for Nelson this weekend, ready to present two resolutions to the annual B.C. Curling Association meeting Sunday prior to the start of the annual B.C. Brier.

Most important resolution will be to appoint Max Zabel, honorary life member of the Victoria Curling Club, as B.C. representative on the Dominion Curling Association executive.

This would give VCC's thrust for the 1958 Brier added impetus. Zabel will attend the 1957 Brier in Kingston, where the decision to hold the 1958 championships will be made.

Other resolution will be to have the secretary of the BCCA appointed from the same district as the president. Usual practice is to elect a president each year from the club hosting the B.C. 'spiel, but Art Glicker of Nelson has been secretary for several years.

Club playoffs to decide two representatives in Vancouver Island championships, to be held at VCC March 30-31, will start Sunday morning.

Full slate of 16 entries has been received. Rinks entered are skipped by Jim Redlin, Gordie Robertson, Gar Taylor, Mel Smith, Bill Francis, W. Hibbert, Jack Adams, Laurie Perlette, Gerry Walls, Morley MacDonald, Charlie Watson, Wes Austin, Jack English, Fred Kerr, Jack Merrifield and Larry Marshall.

Play will be on the double knockout system, as in the Consols competition. Two rinks each from VCC, Duncan, Port Alberni and Nanaimo will compete in the round-robin championship draw.

Club bonspiel, set for March 18-23, has 16 rinks entered to date, three of them from out of town. Farthest away is Frank Hall's rink from Chilliwack, while Sam Bruneau has entered from Vancouver and Harvey Hodge from Duncan. Three entries have attracted to the ladies' bonspiel, Mar.

1-3. They are skipped by Mrs. Betty Gallagher and Mrs. Dorothy Walton, both of Victoria, and Rose Miller of Vancouver.

Soccer Players' Union Fires Jimmy Guthrie

LONDON (CP) — Jimmy Guthrie, burly, 45-year-old Scot who has championed the cause of British soccer players for almost 10 years, has been fired as chairman of the players' union.

Monday afternoon the 220-pound ex-footballer entered a Manchester hotel for the annual meeting of the Soccer Players' Union as the 3,000-member organization's full-time paid chairman. Four hours later he left the meeting almost in tears after being dropped both as chairman and a member of the union's committee.

Not one of the 55 club representatives present nominated him for re-election. The union said, without amplification, that Guthrie's removal came after "reviewing negotiations and the outcome of several issues during the last two years."

BONUSES GRANTED

However, it is known some members were unhappy at Guthrie's action last year in making public a union decision to take strike action unless demands for increased bonuses were met. Some members said publicly his action might prove detrimental to negotiations then under way. Later club owners agreed to increase game bonuses to £3 for a victory and 20 shillings for a draw. The previous bonuses were £2 and £1.

Two players of international repute expressed surprise at the union action. Trevor Ford, Welsh international who has been feuding with the football league, said "it seems hard luck on Guthrie."

Len Shackleton, Sunderland star, said: "Jimmy was always a bit of a bull in a china shop but he had a tough job."

Guthrie, who has held the £1,000-a-year chairman's post since 1948, said: "I did not expect this to happen after all this time, but it is just one of those things."

UNION POWERFUL
"The union has come a long way since I took over and now is a powerful body. I'm naturally sorry about all this but I have no grudge against the union. I shall continue to fight for the union with all the means at my command."

The hard-hitting Guthrie was famed for forthright declarations in defence of professional footballers. Addressing a Trades Union Congress meeting in 1955, he said "professional footballers are the bonded men in Britain... human beings sold like cattle."

The union meeting ended without a new chairman being named. Secretary Cliff Lloyd, one of Guthrie's critics last year, said the committee will meet within two weeks to appoint an unpaid chairman from among members and would consider appointing a full-time paid organizer.

NEW YORK (CP) — Ted Tully, for the last two years a choice of western sports writers on the Canadian Press Western Interprovincial Football Union all-star defensive team, has signed for his eighth season with the Edmonton Eskimos.

The 27-year-old Canadian has played in the two Shrine games. He is six feet one inch tall and weighs 215 pounds.

NEW YORK (CP) — Tony D'Amico, 146, New York, outpointed Chris Christensen, 148, Denmark, 10.

Juniors Key To WIFU Domination?

TORONTO (CP) — Western Canada's current supremacy in professional football is due to its interest and development in junior football, says the Canadian Rugby Union's junior committee.

It believes the East should try to match the West's efforts.

Jess Fliton of Toronto, committee secretary-registrar, Saturday told delegates from member unions throughout Canada: "Junior football in Western Canada has progressed much more rapidly than in the East during the last few years because the senior Western clubs take much greater financial interest, particularly British Columbia Lions, Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers."

"These clubs have assisted junior clubs to the extent of $8,000 to $12,000 during the last year and the figure may reach close to $15,000 during 1957. No wonder the West has done such a great job."

Hoad Ordered To Take Rest

MELBOURNE (AP) — Lew Hoad, Australia's top tennis player, has been ordered by his doctor to take at least six weeks' rest for an injured back.

This, the doctor warned Monday, includes all practice. Hoad probably will have to cancel all commitments until March. If his back responds to treatment, he should be ready to start his planned overseas tour in the spring.

Hoad's ailment was blamed for his loss to Neale-Fraser in the semifinals of the national singles championships last Saturday.

Vic Wertz Named Most Courageous

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vic Wertz, who licked polio to regain his stature as one of baseball's hardest hitters with Cleveland Indians, was honored by the Philadelphia Sportswriters' Association, Monday night, as the most courageous athlete of 1956.

Wertz spent four weeks in hospital after being stricken in 1955. He returned in 1956 to experience his most successful season, slugging 32 home runs and batting home 106 runs, fourth highest in the majors.

Only Mickey Mantle, Stan Musial and Al Kaline batted in more runs.

SALT LAKE CITY—Gene Fullmer, 180, West Jordan, Utah, outpointed Wilt Greaves, 182, Edmonton, 10.

German Team Wins Six-Day Marathon

CLEVELAND (AP) — The German team of Herbert Weirich and Heinz Zoll edged the favored Australian team in the final going Monday night to win the six-day bicycle race here by a single lap.

The Aussie team of John Tredder and Alfred Strom, which dominated the standings during much of the long, gruelling race, was second.

Critics of Star Athletes Roasted by Redleg Boss

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Cincinnati's Birdie Tebbetts took critics of athletes to task Monday night, announcing, "I'm tired of people criticizing the life of baseball players."

Tebbetts, the 1956 "manager of the year" in the National League, addressed an audience of 500 at the annual Milwaukee Baseball Writers' diamond dinner.

"I don't believe anyone, just on hearsay information, has the right to jeopardize the family life of a baseball player," the Redlegs' manager said.

He referred to remarks made recently by Jackie Robinson that the Milwaukee Braves' 1956 pennant hopes were harpored by one or two key players who, according to Robinson, luxuriated in night clubs until "wee hours" while on the road. Robinson didn't name the players he said he had heard about.

O'Hare Meets Ralph Dupas At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS — Brian O'Hare, 126-pound scrapper from Victoria, will meet Vancouver's Ralph Dupas in the semi-main event of an amateur boxing card to be staged here Saturday.

Mickey Tods, of Port Alberni, and Tommy Delvechio, of Vancouver, are scheduled to battle in the 147-pound main event.

Other bouts are: Bruce Baillie, Chemainus, vs. Tommy Black, Victoria, 80 pounds; AB Roberts, RCN, vs. Gordon Raby, Victoria, 126 pounds; Jim Lyslar, Chemainus, vs. Wayne Girick, Victoria, 85 pounds; Jack Vaughn, Vancouver, vs. Jack Paxton, Victoria, 170 pounds; Allan Thormett, Chemainus, vs. Tim Ormiston, Victoria, 65 pounds; Joe Zahara vs. Winnie Schell, Vancouver, 100 pounds.

Return to 3-Year High School Recommended at Oak Bay PTA

High school term in B.C. should be compressed into three years as it was in 1930, Dr. David Stoddard told Oak Bay Junior High PTA Monday night.

"Our students aren't learning any more in four years than they were in the three years I had at high school," he said.

"Look at all the extra classrooms we would have."

Approximately 100 parents turned out to hear a panel discussion of the question "Are There Frills in Education?"

Representing business, Dr. Stoddard said the city council suggestion that the school board collect its own taxes should make it clear the public cannot afford higher costs.

Red China, Bulgaria Sign Trade Agreement

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China and Bulgaria have signed a trade agreement for 1957. China will supply industrial raw materials and household items, while Bulgaria will send China non-ferrous metals, chemicals, textiles and pharmaceutical goods.

But you have to remember that many homes are not interested or equipped to teach some of these things."

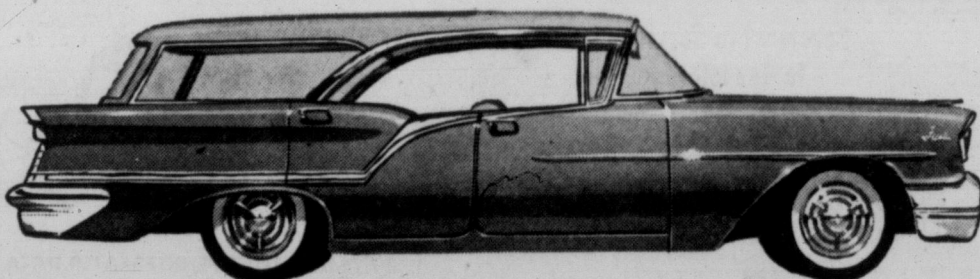

Replying to Dr. Stoddard on the question of taxes, panelist W. H. Golby, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, argued "If we said we wouldn't build and got the mill rate down, we could never make up the loss in youth training."

Federal government should pay school costs and take the burden off property owners, ex-alderman Robert Macmillan said. "Our children grow up to be Canadians and not just municipal residents and Canada should bear the costs."

WORK BEGUN ON NEW SOLARIUM

Old home is being demolished today on site of new Queen Alexandra Solarium at Gordon Head. Contractors Howe and Wilson hold $879,790 contract for children's hospital to replace one in use at Mill Bay. New building will rise on old Pemberton Holly Farm, Arbutus near Haro.

LOOK OUT! FLOODING THREATENED

Warning against floods if weather continues mild was issued today by Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash, who said municipal workmen have been engaged for several days clearing drains in anticipation of sudden thaw.

Residents should remove all goods from low-lying areas, he pointed out, and see that ditches around property are clear. Workmen can not get to all culverts, he said.

Ground is frozen from the recent cold spell and run-off water will not be absorbed as usual.

"It could be serious and might create conditions as before," when serious flooding was experienced all over Greater Victoria.

Dowell to Head Probe Of Hospital Crowding

Mayor Also Names McEwen, Wyatt to Special Committee

A special council committee of Aldermen Arthur Dowell, Elmer D. McEwen and city manager C. C. Wyatt was named today to study the question of hospital crowding here.

ALD. ARTHUR DOWELL

MANAGER C. C. WYATT

ALD. E. D. MCEWEN

Mayor Percy Scourrah, who asked council authority to set up a committee last week, said main aim of the group will be to bring to a head the problem of municipal financing toward a new 140-bed wing at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mayor called for new attempts to break a 14-month-old deadlock in negotiations with Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, in view of a new hospital crisis.

76 WAITING

Last week there were 76 persons waiting hospital beds, some of them seriously ill. Although there was some relief by weekend discharges, the reserve of beds for emergency cases at Jubilee was taken up with a rash of weekend accidents.

Chairman of the new committee will be Alderman Dowell. He is at present in Hawaii but a meeting of the committee is expected to be called on his return, Feb. 8.

Projected cost of the new wing for Jubilee is $1,100,000.

BREAKDOWN

The federal government will be called upon to pay $150,000. The province will be asked for $700,000. The board of directors will contribute over $225,000 and the balance of about $325,000 is asked of Greater Victoria municipalities.

When the matter was brought up in 1955, Victoria finance committee balked at paying 49 per cent of the Greater Victoria share. When no agreement could be reached the question was disregarded for 14 months.

It is now thought that due to the 1956 census the Victoria share on a per capita basis would be only 43 per cent.

SAANICH UP

The Saanich share on the same basis would jump from 27 to 30 per cent.

Mayor Percy Scourrah has opposed Victoria taking a greater share of the costs than other municipalities because, he says, the city has contributed almost $500,000 to the hospital over the years while Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay have together given less than $50,000.

Two Injured As Car Skids At Keating

Two persons were injured and two cars heavily damaged in an accident Monday at 11:30 p.m. on Patricia Bay Highway near Keating Cross Road.

Taken to Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney were Howard C. Stanley, 3068 Earl Grey, Victoria, driver of one of the cars, and Miss Crystal Burton, 2026 Richmond, a passenger in Stanley's car.

Miss Burton suffered a broken right arm and shoulder injuries, and Mr. Stanley cuts and bruises, but hospital authorities described their condition today as "good."

A second passenger in the Stanley car, Peter Ruzyski, 1618 Richmond, escaped injury.

According to Central Saanich police, the accident occurred when the Stanley car, proceeding north, went into a skid and sideswiped a parked car owned by Archie Casson, 1030 Second Avenue, Sidney.

Damage to both cars was extensive, police said.

Gunsmith Wins Court Battle:

Charge of selling a firearm to a 14-year-old minor, laid last week against gunsmith Ralph Wherry, 629 Pandora, was withdrawn in city court today.

Wherry in his defence proved to the prosecution's satisfaction the pistol in question did not constitute a firearm since it shoots a spring-propelled pellet.

Air pistols and weapons using cartridges are firearms, according to definitions in dictionaries consulted by prosecutor Terry O'Grady.

"I can't argue the pistol is a firearm," Mr. O'Grady told the court, and withdrew the charge.

Sentence Monday On Scrap Theft In Esquimalt

Sentence on Melvin F. Newton, 695 Baxter, convicted in Esquimalt court Monday of theft of scrap valued over $50 Jan. 5, will be passed next Monday after a probation report has been made.

Metal junk, about 1,200 pounds in all, including three rear-end auto assemblies, two front assemblies and a bumper, was taken from a yard at 878 Viewfield, a storage area kept by William John Temple, 2871 Dy-sart, owner of the metal.

Newton sold it to Industrial Iron and Metal Trading Co. for $15.06. He said a man in a coal yard next door told him he could take it away.

As used car parts, Temple claimed, the junk was worth about $90.

SENORITA (Mrs. Stewart Stevenson) DE LARA

ADVICE TO SENORITAS:

Latins for Love, Irish for Marriage

By DINAH KERR

Although love is "the most important thing" in Latin countries, at least one Spanish senorita is glad she married an Irishman.

She is Mrs. Stewart Stevenson, the former Senorita Elvira De Lara, daughter of Countess Isabel de La Roche and the late Senor De Lara, one-time Spanish consul to Mexico.

"I wouldn't marry a Spaniard for anything," she said here today. "The Spanish and the Irish are both romantic but with the Spanish, all the romance ends with marriage. With the Irish it continues and gets better—like old wine, you know."

Just returned from a visit in Mexico, Mrs. Stevenson is a travelling agent for her brother's firm, "De Lara Tours."

Former lecturer at the Mexican Spanish Academy in Mexico City, she will open a 15-week course in Spanish at the YMCA Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. A demonstration class will be held Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 8.

Why the Spaniards flit off as soon as the wedding's over, Mrs. Stevenson doesn't know. They go through enough to catch their senoritas.

In the smaller towns of Mexico and Spain, "boy-meets-girl" is a four-month endurance test.

After all, Spanish women don't do anything but take care of themselves. We don't go out to knock the world on its ear, like Americans do. The Spanish girl never has to face the hardships of the world. She has a man—good, bad or indifferent—to do it for her.

SERENADES

Then follow secret meetings, serenades and gifts which the girl must return. "Otherwise she's compromised."

Finally after many interviews with her parents, boy gets girl. He is very thrilled.

Senoritas thrive on this, said Mrs. Stevenson.

COMBINED AGE OF 96 YEARS

Two Tired Old Tugs Make Last Run to Shipbreakers

Two grand old ladies of the B.C. towboating industry—their combined ages total 96 years—arrived at Victoria today.

Their destination: the inner harbor shipbreaking yard of Wagner, Stein and Greene.

The veterans of coastal waters are the ex-PGE tug Point Ellice and the Pacific (Coyle) Navigation Co.'s old-timer, Faultless.

Both were purchased by the Victoria shipbreakers at Vancouver. They came here today, with Point Ellice doing her last towing job, and Faultless riding at the end of the towing wire.

Faultless, elder of the two, was launched at New Westminster in 1907. For years she served the Coyle interests faithfully. Hardly a harbor or cove on the B.C. coastal mainland was missed on her thousands of towing jobs.

BOX CAR BARGES

Point Ellice, which entered service in 1911, had a more routine, but just as useful, career. Her job was to tow box car barges from Vancouver to Squamish, providing the water link for the PGE.

Completion of the southern extension of the railroad ended Point Ellice's job—after about 12,000 round trips covering nearly 100,000 miles. Too old for refitting and starting out on a new career, Point Ellice will melt away before the welder's torch and shipbreaker's hammer.

The two old tugs join a third at the breaker's yard. She is the 1908-built Lilloet, formerly owned by Pacific Towing Ltd.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Is it known who named Nootka?

A.—Yes! The Encyclopedia of Canada gives this account: "Nootka Sound, an inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island, between 49 and 50 degrees. Juan Perez, a Spanish explorer, visited its mouth in 1774, but it was actually discovered and named by Capt. Cook in 1774."

It begins one sunny afternoon on the plaza where the girls and boys line up in giggling beys on either side.

Then they begin walking towards each other. If he's interested he flirts, and if she cares to, she encourages him with a smile.

"Her mother and father are sitting on a bench watching, so she isn't allowed to talk," said Mrs. Stevenson.

Then the boy follows the girl home and the longer he lingers outside, the more interested he is, according to Mrs. Stevenson. "If he stands" for two hours he's very interested."

Then follow secret meetings, serenades and gifts which the girl must return. "Otherwise she's compromised."

Finally after many interviews with her parents, boy gets girl. He is very thrilled.

Senoritas thrive on this, said Mrs. Stevenson.

JUDY BOOTS

(Batting for Monte Roberts)

I have been asked to say what I think about the proposed by-law which would put a limit on the number of cats allowed to live in any one house in Victoria, namely three cats per house.

Well, to start out with, some of my best friends are cats although most of them don't know it this being a natural hazard for doggies even female-type doggies and especially if they live at the Old Man's house which most people think he doesn't like cats but is not true.

The Old Man is quite willing to be very fond of cats if they are fond of him but there aren't many who are, which shows good judgment I guess on the part of the cats that is.

Although I will give the Old Man his due he is willing to be fond of anything which can learn to be fond of him a tough chore I might add but it can be done if you concentrate and if you realize your bed and bone is at stake hah hah I made a pun by accident I assure you.

But where was I I must be getting somewhere oh yes I was going to give my opinion on the by-law which would allow only one cat to a household.

Well live and let live I always say which is why I do not chasa cats the Old Man thinks it is because I have been trained not to chase cats little does he know I do not chase cats because someday I might catch one and then woe betide. I mean woe betide me not the cat.

But live and let live is an excellent motto I think and live and let live is what we should do in re cats.

If somebody wishes to have three cats live at his house why let him have three cats live at his house as long as the three cats wish to live at his house if they do not wish to live there somebody should find another home for them.

But I do not think this can be accomplished by raring back on your hind legs and passing another by-law in the first place if there were a by-law would we have to employ a cat-watcher or a feline-finder to keep tabs on the tabbies hah hah that was another accidental funny but still think of where the tax money goes doesn't it?

Also if we place a limit on the number of cats per household where will it all end and we also have a limit on the number of budgie birds and canaries and turtles and small white rabbits and goldfish in the pond and guppies in the aquarium and mosquitos in the bedroom and chickadees in the garden and people-type babies in the playpen I ask you this is a serious matter.

As far as I am concerned I can take cats or leave them alone preferably leave them alone they have sharp claws and I guess the Old Man feels the same way but if people wish to have cats living at their houses why let them have cats and if you have to employ a cat-watcher let him watch the people who have cats and make sure they treat them right and do not let them bother their neighbors or wander around like lost souls or worst of all if people get tired of cats and dump them on the public highway or in the country they should be thrown in jail the people not the cats.

I think if we are going to pass a by-law limiting something we should pass a by-law limiting the number of by-laws.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Gone Forever, It Seems,
Are Little Piglets Banks

By PENNY SAVER

What has happened to the old-fashioned piggy bank? He just grew and grew and grew! Gone are the days of the pudgy little pig that sat on the nursery table, now it seems the piggy bank is almost a piece of furniture. When you see the life-size pig that I found in town, you'll know what I mean. That's right, it's life-size, and bright red. He's as bold as he can be, and hungry. . . . This is a real family-size pet. This one is $14.95. Porky has smaller brothers and sisters, still a good size, but much next to him. These are priced at $6.50, $4.25 and $2, and are finished with a suede-like coat. Not quite the same as a piggy bank, but filling the same need, are cuddly honey bear banks, $3, and circus elephants with gay little hats, also $3.

Here's a good buy for you women who need extra-long scarves. For just 79 cents, you can have excellent quality scarves that are priced so low, only because they are long length. There are three popular shades from which to choose. For a pleasant change, instead of paying extra for extra length, you're getting a bonus for being long-legged!

Youngsters who love to read will get a real thrill from the wonderful "The Illiad and the Odyssey" book available in town. The stories are presented in such a way to appeal to the young readers, and yet none of the classical atmosphere and beauty is lost. Giant, full-page colored illustrations are spread through the book, making each page a revelation and adventure. These books are $4.95.

Very new and very attractive are curling club emblem scarves that will be favorites with Victorians come with brown, toria curls, I'm sure. Pure silk, made in Switzerland, these cream, navy or maroon backgrounds with colorful crests from all over Canada forming a smart pattern. This could be a thoughtful gift item for some friend who enjoys the sport. It's interesting to see the various crests and emblems adopted by the Canadian clubs. These scarves are selling at $6.95.

There's a worthwhile sale of material on in town right now. I noticed, particularly, 40-inch rayon velvet regularly priced at $3.95, selling for just $2 a yard. The material comes in a lovely, pristine white, or in a deep, rich turquoise. (Any coming brides interested in a good buy for their gown?)

Rather than search around town for the items mentioned here in the column, call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where I found them.

A Squeeze of Lemon — For Beauty!
Helps Your Hair, Hands, Skin

For centuries the lemon has been the companion of beauty and health. In ancient China the lemon was called Limung, meaning "beneficial to women." Its beautifying powers were well known to the physicians of the Renaissance. In early days the lemon blossom and fruit were used in love potions. Incense made from fragrant lemon wood was used in religious ceremonies. According to an old legend a lovely Empress seeking to make her complexion as exquisite as the waxen lotus petals, produced a potion from lemons that made her skin even more beautiful than the silken texture of the flower. Enchanted with her discovery, the Empress kept her beauty secret hidden from the world in a jeweled, lacquered box, where it was found after her death.

Modern science has replaced with fact the myth and mystery surrounding the lemon's beautifying power. Today as in ancient times, the woman who treasures lovely complexion and hair ends her search for a beautifier in a product of nature—the lemon. The beauty of skin and hair are closely related to the health of the body. The hair, skin, hands and nails get their nourishment from the blood, as do other organs of the body; consequently a beauty treatment, to be effective, must be internal as well as external. Fresh lemons are an excellent source of vitamin C—the vitamin that is essential for life, to maintain healthy organs and functions. Vitamin C cannot be stored in the body; hence it must be included in the diet every day. The juice of one lemon provides over half of the recommended daily allowance of this life-preserving vitamin. Lemons are also an outstanding source of the newly discovered "citrus bio-flavonoids."

These bio-flavonoids strengthen the tiny blood vessels (capillaries) found in all parts of the body, and work in conjunction with vitamin C in times of physical stress, such as injury, infection, surgery and colds. Help yourself to normal functioning by starting each day with a glass of hot water, into which has been squeezed the juice of one lemon. Following this "internal" beauty treatment, try these "external" beauty hints for hair, skin and hands.

HAIR—For an easy, economical shampoo, mix together in a quart jar one small box of mild soap flakes, ½ teaspoon mineral oil, two tablespoons fresh lemon juice and one quart hot water; stir well. To store, keep covered.

LEMON-SHAMPOO — Beat together one egg yolk, one tablespoon olive oil, juice of ½ lemon. Rub this mixture into scalp well and rinse with lukewarm water containing the juice of one lemon. Rinse again in clear water and dry the hair.

Reveal the true color of your hair by using a lemon rinse. Your hair, a woman's crowning glory, provides endless possibilities for dramatizing your personality.

You can make your own hair lacquer to hold unruly hair in place. Cut two lemons into slices, cover with water and boil until all the juice is removed from the lemons, five to 10 minutes. Strain and use the liquid just as you would any lacquer, with brush, spray or fingers.

Is your hair a mousy, drab color? Bring it to life with a lemon and sun treatment. Start with your regular shampoo and thorough rinse. Then squeeze and strain the juice of two lemons, adding two cups of warm water to the juice. Pour this mixture over your wet hair, and rub in. Do not rinse out, but towel dry the hair, then sit outside in direct sunlight and brush your hair completely dry.

SKIN—Tired feet? Rub them with lemon slices for that wonderful, cool, refreshing relief.

Tans are going out of style; femininity is starring in today's world of fashion. And lemons are helping bring back that clear white, lovely complexion. Rub half a fresh lemon over your face and neck to keep them lily white.

The normal skin condition is slightly acid, and this acid condition can be maintained by adding just a few drops of lemon juice to water and creams used on the face. Lemon acids are the same ones found in normal healthy skin tissues.

HANDS—To remove offensive odors from hands after cutting onions or garlic; after washing dishes—rub them with sliced lemon. Lemon not only removes offensive cooking odors and stains, but keeps your hands soft and white.

Baby Boy Christened

Wearing his godmother's gift of a lace and nylon christening gown, the baby son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hobbs, 994 London Road, received the names Lance William Stewart in a ceremony in St. Barnabas' Church. Rev. T. Bailey officiated at the ceremony. Godmother is Mrs. C. Bloomfield and godfathers, CPO Garfield Canning, HMCS Stettler, and Mr. A. Drinkwater, of Black Creek, B.C., for whom Mr. James Watt and Mr. Paul Bartol stood proxy. A reception was held at the home of the maternal grandmother, Mrs. K. English, 1037 Lyall Street. Among the special guests were the baby's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. S. Hobbs, of Sidney. Mrs. Bloomfield proposed a toast in champagne to the wee honor guest. A christening cake centred the lace-covered table. Luncheon was served. Other guests included Mrs. R. McCoy of Sidney, Mrs. R. F. Sim, Mr. and Mrs. James Watt, Mr. Paul Bartol and Mr. F. B. Hobbs.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About addressing your elders:

Years ago children were taught to address their elders formally by either Mr. or Mrs. Jones. What has happened to this teaching? My boy 2½ years old, and I feel he should be taught this practice. Am I old-fashioned?

Louise Davis answers:

No, you are not old-fashioned, although we must admit that there has been a gradual change in customs over the years from the formal to the informal. Respect for elders, however, still stands and I am optimistic enough to think it will continue.

I hope you will stick to your principles in teaching your child to address one as Mrs. Jones, rather than by her first name. But some names are too difficult for a very young one to pronounce. You learned the hard way, so why can't all children?

First attempts are often hard to recognize, but to try is self discipline and good training. However, I'm sure that your little boy can't very well say "Mrs. Schwartzkopf," but he could say "Aunt Jean" as a temporary compromise. Children such as yours aren't aware of respect or disrespect when addressing an elder, so it shouldn't be shocking if he takes the easy way of calling her "Jean." After a while, you can teach him the right way, and he will quickly learn the meaning of respect and good manners.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Reader Slowed Down—
Now She Enjoys Life

This week I am letting you in on a few "Why Grow Old?" letters. The following one came from a reader recently.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: The telephone rings. It is someone wanting me to be chairman of some committee, or the theatre and then come but the answer is, 'No, sorry, but this year I am taking a rest from doing so many things.'"

"That's the way it has been ever since January first a year ago. My husband does not make a large salary and I have always worked outside the home. I have a daughter in high school and a son in college, his first year. Not only this but I was mixed up in so many activities.

"I was approaching menopause age and decided that I would slow down for a while. First I had to get rid of so much cooking. It took a lot of time and when I had guests it exhausted me. I rented out our son's room and the rent money helps pay for the services of a cook from three until six every week day. It is such a treat to walk in, sit down and eat, get up and read the paper, chat with friends or my husband, or look at TV. I seldom had time for any of this before.

"I feel like a different person since I have simplified my life. My work at the store seems so much easier and I sleep wonderfully. I am no longer nervous. My voice is softer. It used to be high-pitched because of nervousness.

"This is what I did beside get the help I did. I resigned from three or four clubs I belonged to. I also stopped teaching a Sunday school class so that I can sleep later on Sundays. I do go to church and my circle and to PTA once a month.

"My husband and I go out together several times a week to visit friends or go to a movie or the theatre and then come home and eat sandwiches and drink coffee off the kitchen table or before the fire. I have time and energy now to enjoy life."

It takes nerve and determination to drop activities to which you are accustomed and which folks expect you to continue. But you can do it. Many women are too fatigued to enjoy life because they allow it to become so complex. How often do you have time to sit in the sunshine, or rock in a chair or lie down to read or listen to music? If life has goaded you into ruts of activity

The ancient Roman belief that the month of May is unlucky, especially for marriages, still persists in some parts.

Provincial CAC Branch Would Lift Vitamins Tax

Resolutions submitted at a recent meeting of the British Columbia Branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers, held in Vancouver, included one asking that the 5 per cent sales tax be removed from cod liver oil and from the essential vitamins A and D, as these should be classified as foods, not drugs. This resolution was presented by the Vancouver branch.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, Victoria, was in the chair and 11 members attended.

Another resolution, also from the Vancouver branch, asks that more humane slaughter methods be used. Both resolutions were endorsed.

Discussion centred on consumer problems, the feeling of the meeting being that only by constant vigilance and reiterating the CAC stand to both government and manufacturers, will these problems be solved. The branch will ask national CAC to inquire of the federal government what steps are being taken to control the rise in prices of consumer goods.

It was pointed out that members of CAC in British Columbia will follow with interest the findings of the commission studying the Okanagan fruit industry.

Mrs. Mills was appointed delegate to the Provincial Council of Women's annual meeting in Victoria, Feb. 21 and 22. Mrs. T. V. Lillie, Vancouver, is CAC representative on the B.C. research council on dry cleaning and laundering.

Annual meeting of the B.C. branch will be held in Victoria, April 26, to coincide with the visit of Mme. Henri Vautelet, immediate past president of the National CAC.

CAC Members Given Inside Look at Indian Rug Making

Almost ageless, British India rugs increase in beauty as they grow older.

Speaking to members of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Monday, J. Roberts of Jordan's Limited, said the handmade rugs mellow in color, becoming more beautiful each year. "Superior wool is used," he said, "and every knot is done painstakingly by hand."

Mr. Roberts brought a British India rug with him to show the beauty of design, the uniformity in pile which is achieved by hand clipping and the rich colors in the floral design.

He said, "Every British India rug is carefully inspected to assure top quality."

She was married here and during the war years when her husband was overseas, she lived here with their two children, Audrey and John who are now attending McGill University. Maj. Gen. Rockingham is general officer commanding First Canadian Infantry Division and he and his wife are presently living at Pelanawa, Ont., where this picture was taken. Family Counted Main Blessing When Octogenarian Reminisces Happiness personified is Mrs. Sarah Wilby who recently celebrated her 86th birthday.

By TERRY FRENCH

Confined to a wheelchair after amputation of both legs several years ago, Mrs. Wilby, who celebrated her 86th birthday Thursday, is more gracious and cheerful than many women years her junior and able to walk and run as they please.

Her main source of happiness, she will tell you, is her family, all living, all on Vancouver Island.

"I was in a nursing home for a short time and while I was there I realized how lucky I am. So many, many folks have no families to visit them."

Mrs. Wilby, then Miss Sara Flemming ("with two m's, I'm Irish you know") came to Victoria from Nova Scotia when she was 20.

Not long after she arrived she met and married a well-known

"We weren't allowed to read them," she says, but with a twinkle in her eyes, adds, "but we did read them anyway." One of eight children, Mrs. Wilby is the last living member of her family. She is well known in Eastern Star circles and is a charter member of Queen City Chapter, OES, having joined more than 45 years ago, and charter member and past matron of Oak Bay Chapter. She has been a member of Carne Rebekah Lodge for more than 50 years, and is a past noble grand of that lodge.

In her active life, hobbies and interests outside her lodge work were non-existent for "taking care of five children and a big house kept the days pretty full."

With her snowy hair brushed into curls and her amazingly young skin pink with excitement, this octogenarian certainly doesn't look her 86 years. Her only complaint, typical of all women, young or old, is "too many wrinkles to my liking." A lovely philosophy—and one that has kept her young—was revealed when Mrs. Wilby said "I've had a very happy birthday. Though I'm a cripple I'm happy for I have my family around me and what more could I ask?"

The living room at the home of Mrs. J. Wilby was gay with lovely bouquets "from so many nice friends" who remembered the 86th birthday.

Pictures Help Illiterate Peoples to Vote

Dr. Tom Dustan, of the Diocese of Amritsar, spoke on his work in India at a recent meeting of the Diocesan Board of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Anglican Church.

In India, the illiterate people vote by means of pictures on the ballots, which they mark with a cross, Dr. Dustan explained.

There are 500 pupils in the school he supervises, 75 of them Christians. "Many parents wish their children to be trained in a Christian school," he said "but do not wish them to embrace the faith."

The speaker closed his talk with a greeting from Amritsar in the Hindi dialect. He was introduced to the gathering by Rev. J. A. Roberts.

The meeting was held in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay. Rev. H. J. Jones was celebrant at the Communion service, assisted by Canon T. M. Hughes. At opening of the business session, the devotions were taken by Mrs. S. R. Taylor of St. Mary's WA and Mrs. A. V. Collison welcomed members on behalf of the afternoon and evening branches.

Mrs. B. P. Harding, diocesan president, was in the chair and announced formation of a new branch at Brentwood Memorial Chapel, with Mrs. Aldredge the president.

Treasurer's report showed receipts of $6,571.16 for the past month. Dorcas secretary, Mrs. E. Jarvis, announced that gifts have been sent to outlying parishes during the holidays, also six large cases of clothing and four sacks of shoes sent to Peace River and Slave Lake.

Evening Branch, Christ Church Cathedral, Woman's Auxiliary, Dutch Auction, Thursday, at 8 p.m., Memorial Hall. Followed by social hour.

Balmain's Elegant Fashion Opening Inspired by Royal Visit to France

PARIS (AP)—The coming visit to France of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh inspired Pierre Balmain's opening today.

Balmain said he drew his inspiration from "a season of royal weddings and royal visits."

His general line harks back to 1918, with forward shoulder seams and bloused-over tops giving a high-collared look, while puffy tucks and curved seams lend a Grecian urn shape to the hips.

Crepes and drapes continued top trends.

EXPENSIVE OUTFITS

Already noted for such luxuries as a floor-sweeping mink coat several seasons ago, Balmain must have been hard-pressed to pass his old triumphs. But he managed it with an ample triangular cape in ermine, bordered with white fox and ending in a train on the ground. Other unlikely combinations were lynx borders on a pink linen suit, big fur cuffs on chiffon, and a fur-trimmed lace suit.

A heart-shaped neckline bares a lot, but on suits is filled in with softly draped chiffon blouses. Stem-slim long formals have little pointed trains.

Centennial United to Get First Assistant Minister

Hiring of a part-time assistant minister at Centennial United Church was unanimously approved at a congregational meeting Monday night.

Built in 1891, Centennial United has never had an assistant minister.

Official appointment will be made before summer, Rev. Douglas B. Carr said today.

The new minister likely will direct the church's growing youth and visitation programs. The appointment has been necessitated by growth of the congregation to almost 800 members. Membership in the church has doubled since Mr. Carr took over the ministry five years ago.

More than 130 persons joined the church in 1956, reports showed.

A total of $5,604.34 was donated to missionary and maintenance work.

Saanich Acts To Outlaw Trade Stamps

Saanich businesses using a sales "gimmick" called trading stamps, as defined by the Criminal Code, won't be issued licences except by direct action of council, it was decided Monday.

Councillors concurred in this request presented by Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Council of Women, Automotive Dealers' Association, and other groups.

The council also ordered representations to other municipalities and higher levels of government for enforcement or revision of legislation to outlaw trading stamps anywhere in Canada.

Chamber of Commerce claims stamps are an unfair practice and eventually mean higher consumer costs.

Reeve Arthur Ash reminded councillors although he did not favor trading stamps, the Criminal Code already covers them and all the municipality had to do was enforce the law.

"I can't bring myself to infringe upon the legislative prerogative of the federal government," Coun. J. Ronald Grant said, adding he still disapproved stamps, but he was even more opposed to the form of the resolution and would vote against it.

Motion carried 3-2. Coun. Leslie Passmore abstaining.

Protest by Burnside menagerie operator Cecil C. Hyndman against what he claimed was favoritism shown by Saanich council toward an outside zoological enterprise was registered in a letter to council Monday.

Mr. Hyndman, who operates "Featherland" on West Burnside—a collection of birds and small animals—said Reeve Arthur Ash indicated favoritism toward a commercial zoo park proposed by Alberni man Paul Hertel.

Mr. Ash had stated council would hear what Mr. Hertel had to propose, but promised nothing.

He replied to Mr. Hyndman Monday that no special consideration had been given anyone and that equal opportunity would be given anyone interested in setting up a zoo park in Saanich.

Mr. Hyndman will be so informed.

Members of Saanich inside staff will be paid twice monthly instead of once a month, council agreed. Police and firemen will be included if they make similar application.

A delegation from Prospect Lake was told its application for school zone traffic aids on West Saanich Road near Prospect Lake School will be investigated by the police chief and municipal engineer. Necessary action will be taken.

A request from Victoria Chamber of Commerce asking Saanich make representation to Capital Improvement District Commission to allocate funds to develop Mt. Tolmie was referred to Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee for study.

Coun. Leslie Passmore suggested a definite plan be set out before funds are sought. He disapproved of the modern "landing field and airplane hangar" observation site proposed last year in an architect's sketch.

Page 19 — 1-Q — TWO FOR THE SHOW
(BB) "THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND" (Capitol)—The world is young Tab Hunter's oyster. The son of a wealthy father and a doting, spoiling mother, he has life scaled carefully to his own personal measurement.

He'll take his time going through college, first an arts degree, then several years at law school and as many more years after that as his old man can afford. Then he'll relax and do as little of nothing as possible for the rest of his life.

Others who do well are Jessie Royce Landis, who plays Hunter's mother; Jim Backus, series of TV's "Married Joan" series; and Henry Jones who seems to get more parts than a Swiss watch these days.

her to public attention along with two others who also shot to stardom, the late James Dean and Sal Mineo.

UNFORTUNATELY for Mr. Hunter, his dream world is about to crash about his indolent ear. His friend Natalie Wood takes a dim view of his spineless attack on life and his draft-dodging tendencies. And returns his fraternity pin. This worries the boy so much that he can't concentrate on his exams and fails. This is the signal Uncle Sam has been waiting for and it is but a thin, quick step from his rosy-hued Utopia into the world of reality—the army.

So far so good for Marion ("See Here, Private Hargrove") Hargrove's yarn about the life (or lack of same) of an army-hating, army-baiting young rebel in uniform. But from there on in it takes on much the same tone as many other such pictures of a buck private's personal war with the army. At first it's fun but something is lost when one knows from the start that the army is going to win anyway.

THERE ARE a number of chuckle-inducing ingredients invoked into Warner's "The Girl He Left Behind" that make the film worthwhile. Sergeant Murray Hamilton who wants to see his inductees greeting the new day standing "bushy-tailed and tail in the morning" is excellent as he promises that if they cause him "to be chewed" by his superiors they'll be so much grass behind and he'll be the lawn-mower.

NATALIE WOOD is also good as the girl who wants something more from would-be-soldier Hunter than "passion." Indeed she has come a long way from "Rebel Without a Cause," the picture that brought her to the screen.

He denied reports it would approach $8,000,000.

B.C. Drama Festival Opens Tonight

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Little Theatre is taking a proven vehicle this week in the hope of repeating on last year's victory in the British Columbia regional drama festival.

With director Joan Chapman guiding the production, the amateur theatre group will present "Anastasia," which has won no little acclaim in a movie version.

The Vancouver group will be the last of four amateur theatre clubs to perform at the 17th annual B.C. Festival, which opens here tonight.

Two of the other three groups have been frequent entries in previous B.C. festivals.

The Vagabond Players from nearby New Westminster will stage Arthur Miller's tragic "Death of a Salesman" tonight in the opening performance in York Theatre.

Wednesday night will see the White Rock Players perform "The House of Bernarda Alba," and Thursday night's performance of "Blithe Spirit," by Noel Coward, will feature a new entrant to the regional festival—the Chilliwack Little Theatre.

Cecil Bellamy of London is the adjudicator.

This year's finalists across Canada converge on Edmonton for the Dominion Drama Festival, May 20-25.

Ballet Russe Here Tonight

Famed U.S. ballet company, the Ballet Russe will make a single appearance at the Royal Theatre tonight at 8.30.

The company will present the full two acts of Adam's "Giselle," "The Pas de Troie" from "Paquita," and the "Beau Danube."

Leading dancers will be Nina Novak and Igor Youskevitch. Also featured are Yvonne Chouteau, Irina Borowska, Eugene Slavov, Alan Howard, Miguel Terekhov, Deni Lamont and Kenneth Gillespie.

FORMER SCREEN BEAUTY, DOPE ADDICT, DIES AT 53

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Medical records showed Monday that Helene Costello, 53, once a $3,000-a-week star of silent movies, died in hospital where she was committed for narcotics addiction five days ago. She died Saturday of pneumonia.

The former screen beauty was the daughter of matinee idol Maurice Costello and the sister of Dolores Costello Barrymore, herself once a screen great and a former wife of the late actor John Barrymore.

Helene was leading lady in a number of films, including "Love Toy," "Don Juan" and "Pride of the Yankees."

Police Guard Home Of Car-Bomb Victim

(CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER—Police guards were posted Monday night around the home of Peter Hamilton whose car was wrecked 24 hours earlier by a bomb planted in the trunk or gas tank.

Hamilton, 32, owner of a trucking firm, asked for protection after telling police about threats made by a burglar he testified against 12 years ago.

The explosion hurled the trunk lid of the car 30 feet and ripped a hole in the floor. It shattered two windows in Hamilton's home, also occupied by his mother, Mrs. Marie Hamilton.

Hamilton, a former bondsman, told police three of his dogs had been poisoned. His car was stolen earlier Sunday and recovered.

It was the third car bombing in Vancouver in the last two years.

AT TIME-AND-A-HALF RAILMEN WAIT HAPPILY

ALAMOS, Colo. (AP)—Collecting pay at overtime rates, 23 railroaders waited today in a tiny station atop 10,022-foot Cumbres Pass for a relief train to plow out 20-foot snowdrifts that have stranded them since Saturday.

The station is amply stocked with food and fuel, Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad officials said, and the men are receiving time-and-a-half pay for all hours beyond the first eight since they left Chama, N.M., Saturday morning.

The 23 were aboard a two-engine work train sent to clear snow from the branch line along the Colorado-New Mexico border. The train stalled near the summit of the pass.

The railroad agent at Chama, Amos Cordova, reported there is 240 inches of snow on the pass.

PRINCE LATE FOR SCHOOL

The eight-year-old heir to the British throne was 30 minutes late for school today. But Bonnie Prince Charlie had a good reason—newsmen anxious to record his second day at the "outside" school delayed him. He took one look at them and went back to Buckingham Palace. He returned later in a car accompanied by a governess and a detective. The prince Monday became the first heir to the throne to attend an ordinary school instead of learning from private tutors. He is pictured leaving school after the first day. Accompanying him, right, is school's headmaster. In background is governess. (AP Wirephoto.)

SKATING RISKY

Snow Flurries Wednesday

Minor snow flurries Wednesday, and rain mixed with snow, were predicted today by weatherman William Mackie.

There was some snow today, he said, caused by the passage of a mild storm. He forecast partial clearing tonight, then thickening cloud Wednesday with the approach of a new storm.

Minimum temperature tonight will be 34 degrees, and a maximum of 40 is expected Wednesday. Winds tonight will be southwesterly, then dying down and becoming easterly Wednesday.

Warm air and sunshine Monday, and temperatures just barely in the freezing level overnight, combined to cause considerable thawing on the many ice surfaces in the Greater Victoria district.

Skaters were out in force Monday night. Police banned skating on Goodacre Lake in Beacon Hill Park, but there were skaters on Swan Lake.

Glen Lake, Langford Lake and others.

Langford and Swan Lakes were reported today to have water on the surface, and Langford Lake was reported as "spongy."

Snow continued to melt slowly from city streets. Up-Island roads were reported in fair condition, with slippery portions well sanded.

French Plane Crashes; 57 Aboard

PARIS (Reuters)—A French airliner with 57 persons on board crashed tonight at Orly airport.

The plane crashed on landing at the end of a regular flight from Tunis to Paris. It was not immediately known whether there were any casualties.

23 DAYS IT 'MEOWED'

There Just Wasn't Any Kitty After All

SANDRA CARTA sits beside one of many holes punched in her $20,000 house where a "cat" meowed behind the walls for 23 days. (NEA).

GLENDORA, Calif. (AP)—You could have knocked over the Vincent Carta family with a cat's whisker today. There wasn't a cat in their house wall after all. For 23 days the Cartas had been hearing meows coming from the wall.

They knocked holes in the walls. They called "Kitty, Kitty." They put out saucers of milk. No cat. And they had suggestions from everyone who professed to know how to get cats out of walls. It got so bad they disconnected the phone.

With the Cartas at the end of their rope and the cat presumed near the end of its nine lives, Roger Adams, a sound engineer, and Ole Hammer, a water system expert, tried their hand today.

Using sound devices, they tracked what sounded like a faint meow in the bathroom wall to a water meter. They turned off the water meter—no meow. They turned on the water—Meow. The Cartas sighed in relief. Now all they have to do is have the defective meter repaired and patch up the holes in the walls.

QUEBEC HOTEL GUTTED; 10 FEARED DEAD

SOREL, Que. (CP)—Fire early today flamed through a 40-room hotel and five adjoining buildings in this St. Lawrence south shore industrial town. Police said damage may reach $500,000 and there may have been loss of life.

There was one report that 10 persons lost their lives and a second that loss of life was six.

"We don't know until we can get into the ruins to check," a police official said. "They are still too hot."

Firemen blamed two overheated oil drums for an explosion that boomed out at 2:45 a.m. in the Chateauguay Hotel. The resulting fire was reported under control at 6:30 a.m., after more than 100 firemen battled it in near-zero temperatures.

Thief Takes Hostage—Both Vanish

Vancouver Bandit Uses Youth as Shield

VANCOUVER (CP)—A jittery bandit grabbed $14 from the cash register of a confectionery here Monday night and fled, taking a 17-year-old youth as hostage at gunpoint.

Neither the bandit nor his prisoner had been located early today.

The holdup man threatened to shoot the unidentified boy if four other people in the Cambie Street store called police. Witnesses said he backed out of the shop holding a gun in the youth's back.

The lad was "whimpering" as they fled on foot.

However, police said later they believe the youth was an accomplice in the holdup, and listed both the gunman and the hostage as suspects.

Mrs. Elizabeth Culver, wife of the owner, was operating the store alone when the bandit entered at 8:45 p.m.

She said "The fellow shrieked in a terrible voice. 'This is a stickup; don't move.' He stood by the door, and he had a gun in his hand."

There were two women customers in the store and the youth, who had entered minutes previously.

DRAFT DODGERS?

Wilson's Charges Called 'Lie'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressmen and National Guardsmen today manned the battlements over Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson's remark that the National Guard has been a "draft-dodging business."

Both senators and representatives defended the National Guard.

Maj.-Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, National Guard Association president, called Wilson's remark "a lie."

Wilson told the armed services committee Tuesday that the politically-potent Guard was a "sort of scandal" during the Korean War. He said the Guard was used by young men as a "draft-dodging business."

That started the uproar.

Tito Rejects U.S. Visit

War Hints Made at U.N. Over Israeli Deadlock

Canada Backs U.S. Position

(From Times News Services)

The critical situation in the Middle East where Israel has not yet withdrawn its troops from Egyptian territory it captured last year was slowly drawing to a head today.

There were these developments:

1. In the United Nations' General Assembly, Canada's External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson again threw his country's support behind the original United States proposal for a buffer between Israel and Egypt, garrisoned by UNEF troops.

2. A leading Arab spokesman said if Israel continues to defy the UN withdrawal order it means war in the Middle East, and possibly world war.

3. In Cairo the Egyptian deputy foreign minister declared UNEF forces will get out of Egypt once Israel has withdrawn, but gave no basis for this assertion.

4. King Saud of Saudi Arabia arrived in the United States, where the government is endeavoring to woo him to the Western cause.

The main spotlight was on the United Nations.

In throwing Canada's support behind the United States plan, now part of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld's proposals, Mr. Pearson told the General Assembly that "the alternatives are so threatening that we must put every effort towards reaching an honorable and peaceful settlement."

He endorsed Henry Cabot Lodge's stand that an immediate Israeli withdrawal must precede further action in the UN on a long-term settlement.

Pearson said the UN should be associated with steps to replace Israel's suggested civil administration in Gaza. With regard to Aqaba, he gave Canada's backing to Lodge's statement that the UN Emergency Force should be stationed on the Gulf of Aqaba to separate Egyptian and Israeli forces and to govern navigation in waters having such an international interest.

Pearson said the problem with which the assembly had been dealing now is coming to a head with consequences of vital importance to everyone and perhaps even for peace.

It was not only a problem of an Israeli withdrawal, though that was the first order of priority.

"It is the problem not only of making arrangements for security in the unsettled border areas and for free navigation but for making such arrangements here which will be agreed on in this assembly but which would take effect only after Israel had accepted the decision of the United Nations to withdraw."

Pearson said many delegations would have great difficulty in accepting the position that the assembly could take no decision on after the withdrawal itself.

Middle Course Suggested by Pearson

Secretary-general Dag Hammarskjöld had given his views on steps which should be taken after withdrawal and Pearson thought these steps could be approved now.

"The argument in the secretary-general's report is that we must return to the full implementation of the armistice agreement," he added, "but this should be joined with UN action to secure and supervise such implementation."

Compliance with the armistice agreement was as important as compliance with recent resolutions, though any efforts to bring about larger compliance should be subsequent to efforts on withdrawal.

Before Pearson spoke, a leading Arab delegate, Fadel Jamall of Iraq, said Israeli defiance of UN decisions would lead to war in the Middle East, perhaps a world-wide conflict.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov backed the Arab demands.

He called the U.S. policy "a new plan of intervention into the internal affairs of Egypt."

ANYBODY SEEN OUR GAL?

Times reporter Terry French doubted Peter Pan could really fly. She checked with Ice Capades troupe at Memorial Arena and someone sprinkled pixie dust on Terry. Away she flew to Never-Never Land. Photographer Bill Halkett had time for one picture as the only flying reporter in Victoria zoomed past local skating pro, Mary Rose Thacker on arena staircase. Arena crowds will see Peter Pan cavort in mid-air tonight. Anybody seen Terry?

U.S. Senators Order Probe Into Middle East Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate foreign relations and armed services committee voted unanimously today to conduct a complete review of United States foreign policy in the Middle East over the last 11 years.

The vote was 30 to 0.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland said the White House and state department had no objection to the inquiry.

The action apparently cleared the way for ultimate senate adoption of a resolution giving President Eisenhower authority to use U.S. forces to combat any Communist aggression in the Middle East. The Eisenhower resolution would also authorize $200,000,000 of aid to Middle East nations.

The vote by the senate committee came as the House of Representatives began debate on the Eisenhower program with prospects of its approval in that body Wednesday.

Republican Leader Joe Martin of Massachusetts said he thought there was a chance, in fact, of a House vote late today.

Protective devices in the B.C. Electric system stopped the flow of power immediately on all but emergency circuits.

"The trouble lasted only a few seconds, but it takes about 10 minutes to bring the whole system back on load again," a spokesman said.

Sources lost were power from Campbell River and the new B.C. Electric undersea cable. Jordan River continued to provide power for emergency circuits.

Sandys-Wilson Talks To Restart Arms Flow?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Talks continuing here today may result in the first substantial flow of American arms to the United Kingdom since the Second World War, as well as a sharing of U.S. experience in production and use of the new weapons.

The accord appeared to be on missiles as British Defence Minister Duncan Sandys and U.S. Defence Secretary Charles Wilson conferred here for the second day.

Wilson, in addressing NATO defence ministers in Paris Dec. 14, said that the U.S. is prepared to assist allies "who are willing and able to develop their own modern weapons systems."

He offered also to "make available promptly certain items of modern weapons and equipment along with appropriate technical data."

NEW YORK MAYOR SNUBS ARAB KING

King Saud of Saudi Arabia, left, was given an all-out welcome by U.S. officials on his arrival in New York today, but got a bleak reception from the City of New York; Mayor Robert Wagner vetoed an official civic welcome. Right, Prince Mashour, six-year-old son of King Saud, gives left-handed salute as he is carried ashore by well-armed aide. The prince, a polo victim, will undergo treatment for partial arm and leg paralysis while his father confers with President Eisenhower on Mid-East problems. King Saud brought none of his 40 wives with him. King gave $20,000 in tips to liner's staff. (AP).

Jailed Union Chiefs Plan to Renew Fight

VANCOUVER — William Hunchuk, secretary of the former Rock and Tunnel Workers Union of Canada (Ind.), said Monday the union is considering revival of the inter-union battle which led to his imprisonment four months ago for contempt of court. He and Art Andres, president of the union, were released Saturday after serving four-month sentences imposed for contempt of a court order banning picketing during a strike of rock workers which crippled major British Columbia construction projects last fall.

FISH-POWER FIGHT BLAMED

B.C. Lost Chance For Atomic Plant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry V. Warren, professor of geology at the University of British Columbia, said Monday B.C. has lost out on a "fantastic new industry" — the manufacture of U-235, a uranium by-product. He told the Vancouver Board of Trade's ad and sales bureau the province missed out on attracting European governments to build an atomic plant here because of delay — due to the fish-versus power controversy. In deciding whether a huge new Fraser River hydro dam at Meran, 110 miles north of here, should be built. The proposal by six European nations to build an atomic plant "would have been perfect for B.C.," he said.

Prof. Warren said the European group of countries and NATO were both interested in the suggested $500,000,000 dam.

At Brussels during the week-end, delegates from France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Italy agreed a joint $240,000,000 uranium separation plant should be built. A site for the plant has yet to be selected.

Premier Bennett declined comment today on Prof. Warren's statements.

'DOUGHNUT CUTTING' BRINGS FINE

NANAIMO — "Cutting doughnuts" is a practice frowned on by police here—especially if it is with a car on a snow-covered road.

Lloyd George McNeill, 21, was fined $25 on a charge of careless driving, and was barred from driving for two weeks, as a result of his doing spins with his car on a slippery road.

Police said that McNeill's car spun once on Thursday, possibly by accident, but that the accused did the same thing two or three times more while police were watching.

Sinclair Peddling 'Drivel', Says Wicks

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks Monday lashed out at the "arrogance" of the federal government and accused Fisheries Minister James Sinclair of "distorting the truth."

A claim by Mr. Sinclair that tolls on the Lions Gate Bridge were being used to subsidize non-profitable bridges in the interior of the province was labelled "irresponsible drivel" by Mr. Wicks.

"Here was grossly garbled information being peddled by a minister of the Crown," Mr. Wicks said in his strongly worded address over the CBC.

The labor minister said Mr. Sinclair's "malicious invention" had come from "within the thick shell of arrogance and unreality which has encrusted Ottawa."

HARRIS URGES CANADIANS TO SAVE MORE, SPEND LESS

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Harris urged Canadians Monday night to save more and spend less to beat inflation and keep the economy rolling in high gear. He indicated the government has no plans for immediate easing of credit restraints, arguing that too great an expansion in credit could wreck the country's prosperity.

Return to 3-Year High School Recommended at Oak Bay PTA

High school term in B.C. should be compressed into three years as it was in 1930, Dr. David Stoddard told Oak Bay Junior High PTA Monday night.

"Our students aren't learning any more in four years than they were in the three years I had at high school," he said.

"Look at all the extra classrooms we would have."

Approximately 100 parents turned out to hear a panel discussion of the question "Are There Frills in Education?"

Representing business, Dr. Stoddard said the city council suggestion that the school board collect its own taxes should make it clear the public cannot afford higher costs.

B.C. school curriculum does contain subject matter that could be considered frills and "should be taught in the homes," said John R. Meredith of the department of education.

Red China, Bulgaria Sign Trade Agreement

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China and Bulgaria have signed a trade agreement for 1957. China will supply industrial raw materials and household items, while Bulgaria will send China non-ferrous metals, chemicals, textiles and pharmaceutical goods.

"But you have to remember that many homes are not interested or equipped to teach some of these things."

Replying to Dr. Stoddard on the question of taxes, papelist W. H. Golby, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, argued "If we said we wouldn't build and got the mill rate down, we could never make up the loss in youth training."

Federal government should pay school costs and take the burden off property owners, ex-almirant Robert Macmillan said. "Our children grow up to be Canadians and not just municipal residents and not just Canada should bear the costs."

BY-ELECTION IN MARCH

Lawyer Ron. Grant Quits Saanich Council

Saanich will have a by-election early in March to fill a council vacancy caused by resignation Monday night of first-term councillor J. Ronald Grant, who is moving to Vancouver May 1 to join the law department of Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The 30-year-old lawyer has been a member of the Victoria firm Gregory, Grant and Cox for several years. Coun. Grant was elected for a two-year term in December, 1955. Remaining months of his office must be filled by a new councillor, according to the Municipal Act.

Nominations will be called within 30 days and the by-election held eight clear days following nominations.

The vacant seat will be contested by former councillor S.

W. Brock, who was defeated in the December elections by only two votes. A possible candidate is ex-councillor Robert Fleming.

JUDY BOOTS

(Batting for Monte Roberts)

I have been asked to say what I think about the proposed by-law which would put a limit on the number of cats allowed to live in any one house in Victoria, namely three cats per house.

Well, to start out with, some of my best friends are cats although most of them don't know it this being a natural hazard for doggies even female-type doggies and especially if they live at the Old Man's house which most people think he doesn't like cats but is not true.

The Old Man is quite willing to be very fond of cats if they are fond of him but there aren't many who are, which shows good judgment I guess on the part of the cats that is.

Although I will give the Old Man his due he is willing to be fond of anything which can learn to be fond of him a tough chore I might add but it can be done if you concentrate and if you realize your bed and bone is at stake hah hah I made a pun by accident I assure you.

But where was I I must be getting somewhere oh yes I was going to give my opinion on the by-law which would allow only one cat to a household.

Well live and let live I always say which is why I do not chase cats the Old Man thinks it is because I have been trained not to chase cats little does he know I do not chase cats because someday I might catch one and then woe betide. I mean woe betide me not the cat.

But live and let live is an excellent motto I think and live and let live is what we should do in re cats.

If somebody wishes to have three cats live at his house why let him have three cats live at his house as long as the three cats wish to live at his house if they do not wish to live there somebody should find another home for them.

But I do not think this can be accomplished by raring back on your hind legs and passing another by-law in the first place if there were a by-law would we have to employ a cat-watcher or a feline-finder to keep tabs on the tabbies hah hah that was another accidental funny but still think of where the tax money goes doesn't it?

Also if we place a limit on the number of cats per household where will it all end will we also have a limit on the number of budgie birds and canaries and turtles and small white rabbits and goldfish in the pond and guppies in the aquarium and mosquitos in the bedroom and chickadees in the garden and people-type babies in the playpen I ask you this is a serious matter.

As far as I am concerned I can take cats or leave them alone preferably leave them alone they have sharp claws and I guess the Old Man feels the same way but if people wish to have cats living at their houses why let them have cats and if you have to employ a cat-watcher let him watch the people who have cats and make sure they treat them right and do not let them bother their neighbors or wander around like lost souls or worst of all if people get tired of cats and dump them on the public highway or in the country they should be thrown in jail the people not the cats.

I think if we are going to pass a by-law limiting something we should pass a by-law limiting the number of by-laws.

FLOWERS, FLOWERS...

Spring Festival For Garden City

Victoria's two-week Springtime Festival to open on April 28 promises to be one of the gayest and liveliest celebrations ever organized in the city.

Music, dance and drama will be the outstanding features of the festival organized by a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce and city organizations.

In addition, the city's best gardens will be thrown open to the public.

"Several hundred people will take part in various forms of entertainment during the festival."

The festival, the first of its kind organized in Victoria, is expected to attract hundreds of visitors from the Prairie provinces, Washington and Oregon. The chamber hopes to make the festival an annual event, adding new forms of entertainment to it every year.

FLOWER DROP

T. J. Tennyson, chairman of the festival committee, in releasing the program of events today, said a helicopter will drop flowers over Victoria on the opening day of the festival. The program also calls for a decorated yacht to meet the CPR boat on its arrival in the harbor. The visitors will be greeted by the band of HMCS Naden and flower girls.

City streets will be decorated for the event. In addition, the visitors on their arrival here will be officially received at a tea at the Crystal Garden.

DAFFODIL EXPRESS

The festival will emphasize Victoria as a "flower city" throughout the celebrations. The CPR boat will be known as "Ss. Princess Daffodil" and the special touring coach for the visitors as "Daffodil Express."

LOOK OUT! FLOODING THREATENED

Warning against floods if weather continues mild was issued today by Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash, who said municipal workmen have been engaged for several days clearing drains in anticipation of sudden thaw.

Residents should remove all goods from low-lying areas, he pointed out, and see that ditches around property are clear. Workmen cannot get to all culverts, he said.

Ground is frozen from the recent cold spell and run-off water will not be absorbed as usual.

"It could be serious and might create conditions as before," when serious flooding was experienced all over Greater Victoria.

Dowell to Head Probe Of Hospital Crowding

Mayor Also Names McEwen, Wyatt to Special Committee

A special council committee of Aldermen Arthur Dowell, Elmer D. McEwen and city manager C. C. Wyatt was named today to study the question of hospital crowding here.

Mayor Percy Scurrell, who asked council authority to set up a committee last week, said main aim of the group will be to bring to a head the problem of municipal financing toward a new 140-bed wing at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mayor called for new attempts to break a 14-month-old deadlock in negotiations with Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, in view of a new hospital crisis.

76 WAITING

Last week there were 76 persons waiting hospital beds, some of them seriously ill. Although there was some relief by weekend discharges, the reserve of beds for emergency cases at Jubilee was taken up with a rash of weekend accidents.

Chairman of the new committee will be Alderman Dowell.

He is at present in Hawaii but a meeting of the committee is expected to be called on his return, Feb. 8.

Projected cost of the new wing for Jubilee is $1,100,000.

BREAKDOWN

The federal government will be called upon to pay $150,000. The province will be asked for $700,000. The board of directors will contribute over $225,000 and the balance of about $325,000 is asked of Greater Victoria municipalities.

When the matter was brought up in 1955, Victoria finance committee balked at paying 49 per cent of the Greater Victoria share. When no agreement could be reached the question was disregarded for 14 months.

It is now thought that due to the 1956 census the Victoria share on a per capita basis would be only 43 per cent.

SAANICH UP

The Saanich share on the same basis would jump from 27 to 30 per cent.

Mayor Percy Scurrell has opposed Victoria taking a greater share of the costs than other municipalities because, he says, the city has contributed almost $500,000 to the hospital over the years, while Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay have together given less than $50,000.

Two Injured As Car Skids At Keating

Two persons were injured and two cars heavily damaged in an accident Monday at 11.30 p.m. on Patricia Bay Highway near Keating Cross Road.

Taken to Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney were Howard C. Stanley, 3068 Earl Grey, Victoria, driver of one of the cars, and Miss Crystal Burton, 2026 Richmond, a passenger in Stanley's car.

Miss Burton suffered a broken right arm and shoulder injuries, and Mr. Stanley cuts and bruises, but hospital authorities described their condition today as "good."

A second passenger in the Stanley car, Peter Ruzyski, 1618 Richmond, escaped injury.

According to Central Saanich police, the accident occurred when the Stanley car, proceeding north, went into a skid and sideslipped a parked car owned by Archie Casson, 1030 Second Avenue, Sidney.

Damage to both cars was extensive, police said.

Gunsmith Wins Court Battle

Charge of selling a firearm to a 14-year-old minor, laid last week against gunsmith Ralph Wherry, 629 Pandora, was withdrawn in city court today.

Wherry in his defence proved to the prosecution's satisfaction the rifle in question did not constitute a firearm since it shoots a spring-propelled pellet.

Air pistols and weapons using cartridges are firearms, according to definitions in dictionaries consulted by prosecutor Terry O'Grady.

"I can't argue the gun is a firearm," Mr. O'Grady told the court, and withdrew the charge.

LETTERS TO DRIVERS

(In this column the Times presents letters from and to drivers about careless, discourteous or reckless infractions of driving rules. When you see one just send in the place, date and time, and what happened. Don't give the number of the offending vehicle. Only initials of complainants will be used.)

TODAY'S BEEFS

I've worked up a pet peeve against drivers who dawdle along Fort Street from the Oak Bay Junction to Poul Bay Road.

For some unknown reason, many drivers dither along this artery at 10-15 miles an hour, holding up a long line of cars whose drivers wish to travel at, or near, the legal limit of 30.

Admittedly, the street is no freeway, but surely a speed of 25 mph is not too much to ask of this slowpoke breed of driver who unwittingly contributes to the accident statistics.—Slow Burn.

About 3.15 p.m. on Monday a driver in a Ford V-8 going north on Douglas Street weaved in and out of both lanes pushing other cars off to one side. When he got to Topaz Avenue he had to brake sharply to avoid a car turning right. He skidded in the snow and wound up on the curb. He then turned away, skidded across the street and turned down Burnside going at least 50 miles an hour.—F.F.K.

Why is it that in a line of traffic if the lead car runs into some difficulty the remaining cars always have to pull out and try to go ahead in the face of oncoming traffic. Result usually is a horrible traffic tie-up. If these drivers would only observe a little bit of patience and remain in line they would get where they are going much faster than by trying to make a four-lane highway out of roads that are built to handle two lanes of traffic.

This was especially true during the recent snow conditions when drivers seemed bent on getting to their destinations in record time despite hazardous road conditions and traffic delays occasioned by cars in ditches and in trouble on slippery hills.—P.W.S.

Island Manager Of B.C. Telephone Wins Promotion

C. W. (White) Halford, since 1951 B.C. Telephone Company division commercial manager for Vancouver Island, has been promoted to general commercial manager at Vancouver, the company announced today.

Mr. Halford joined B.C. Telephone in 1916 and has held the posts of paymaster, auditor of receipts, commercial supervisor, district commercial manager, and assistant general commercial manager.

He will be succeeded here by Eric L. Mallett, former north shore district commercial manager, and president of the North Vancouver Board of Trade.

At 10:09 p.m. they answered a call to 1496 Shorncliffe where hot wiring in a radio threatened a blaze.

SENIORITA (Mrs. Stewart Stevenson) DE LARA.

ADVICE TO SENORITAS:

Latins for Love, Irish for Marriage

By DINAH KERR

Although love is "the most important thing" in Latin countries, at least one Spanish senorita is glad she married an Irishman.

She is Mrs. Stewart Stevenson, the former Senorita Elvira De Lara, daughter of Countess Isabel de La Roche and the late Senor De Lara, one-time Spanish consul to Mexico.

"I wouldn't marry a Spaniard for anything," she said here today. "The Spaniard and the Irish are both romantic but with the Spaniard, all the romance ends with marriage. With the Irish it continues and gets better—like old wine, you know."

Just returned from a visit in Mexico, Mrs. Stevenson is a travelling agent for her brother's firm, "De Lara Tours." Former lecturer at the Mexican Spanish Academy in Mexico City, she will open a 15-week course in Spanish at the YMCA Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. A demonstration class will be held Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 8.

Why the Spaniards flit off as soon as the wedding's over, Mrs. Stevenson doesn't know. They go through enough to catch their senoritas.

In the smaller towns of Mexico and Spain, "boy-meets-girl" is a four-month endurance test.

Then follow secret meetings, serenades and gifts which the girl must return. "Otherwise she's compromised."

Finally after many interviews with her parents, boy gets girl. He is very thrilled.

Senoritas thrive on this, said Mrs. Stevenson.

"After all, Spanish women don't do anything but take care of themselves. We don't go out to knock the world on its ear, like Americans do. The Spanish girl never has to face the hardships of the world. She has a man—good, bad or indifferent—to do it for her."

Senoritas thrive on this, said Mrs. Stevenson.

Q.—Is it known who named Nootka?

A.—Yes! The Encyclopedia of Canada gives this account: "Nootka Sound, an inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island, between 49 and 50 degrees. Juan Perez, a Spanish explorer, visited its mouth in 1774, but it was actually discovered and named by Capt. Cook in 1774."

Gone Forever, It Seems,
Are Little Piglets Banks

By PENNY SAVER

What has happened to the old-fashioned piggy bank? He just grew and grew and grew! Gone are the days of the pudgy little pig that sat on the nursery table, now it seems the piggy bank is almost a piece of furniture. When you see the life-size pig that I found in town, you'll know what I mean. That's right, it's life-size, and bright red. He's as bold as he can be, and hungry . . . This is a real family-size pet. This one is $14.95. Porky has smaller brothers and sisters, still a good size, but small next to him. These are priced at $6.50, $4.25 and $2, and are finished with a suede-like coat. Not quite the same as a piggy bank, but filling the same need, are cuddly honey bear banks, $3, and circus elephants with gay little hats, also $3.

Here's a good buy for you women who need extra-long scarves come with brown, turtleneck, I'm sure. Pure nylon. For just 79 cents, you can have excellent quality scarves that are priced so low, only because they are long length. There are three popular shades from which to choose. For a pleasant change, instead of paying extra for extra length, you're getting a bonus for being long-legged!

Youngsters who love to read will get a real thrill from the wonderful "The Illiad and the Odyssey" book available in town. The stories are presented in such a way to appeal to the young readers, and yet none of the classical atmosphere and beauty is lost. Giant, full-page colored illustrations are spread through the book, making each page a revelation and adventure. These books are $4.95.

Very new and very attractive are curling club emblem scarves that will be favorites with Vic-

There's a worthwhile sale of material on in town right now. I noticed, particularly, 40-inch rayon velvet regularly priced at $3.95, selling for just $2 a yard. The material comes in a lovely, pristine white, or in a deep, rich turquoise. (Any coming brides interested in a good buy for their gown?)

Rather than search around town for the items mentioned here in the column, call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where I found them.

THE BETTER HALF

A Squeeze of Lemon — For Beauty!
Helps Your Hair, Hands, Skin

For centuries the lemon has been the companion of beauty and health. In ancient China the lemon was called Limung, meaning "beneficial to women." Its beautifying powers were well known to the physicians of the Renaissance. In early days the lemon blossom and fruit were used in love potions. Incense made from fragrant lemon wood was used in religious ceremonies. According to an old legend a lovely Empress seeking to make her complexion as exquisite as the waxen lotus petals, produced a potion from lemons that made her skin even more beautiful than the silken texture of the flower. Enchanted with her discovery, the Empress kept her beauty secret hidden from the world in a jeweled, lacquered box, where it was found after her death.

Modern science has replaced with fact the myth and mystery surrounding the lemon's beautifying power. Today as in ancient times, the woman who treasures lovely complexion and hair ends her search for a beautifier in a product of nature—the lemon.

The beauty of skin and hair are closely related to the health of the body. The hair, skin, hands and nails get their nourishment from the blood, as do other organs of the body; consequently a beauty treatment, to be effective, must be internal as well as external. Fresh lemons are an excellent source of vitamin C—the vitamin that is essential for life, to maintain healthy organs and functions. Vitamin C cannot be stored in the body; hence it must be included in the diet every day. The juice of one lemon provides over half of the recommended daily allowance of this life-preserving vitamin. Lemons are also an outstanding source of the newly discovered "citrus bio-flavonoids."

These bio-flavonoids strengthen the tiny blood vessels (capillaries) found in all parts of the body, and work in conjunction with vitamin C in times of physical stress, such as injury, infection, surgery and colds. Help yourself to normal functioning by starting each day with a glass of hot water, into which has been squeezed the juice of one lemon. Following this "internal" beauty treatment, try these "external" beauty hints for hair, skin and hands.

HAIR—For an easy, economical shampoo, mix together in a quart jar one small box of mild soap flakes, ½ teaspoon mineral oil, two tablespoons fresh lemon juice and one quart hot water; stir well. To store, keep covered.

LEMON-SHAMPOO — Beat together one egg yolk, one tablespoon olive oil, juice of ½ lemon. Rub this mixture into scalp well and rinse with lukewarm water containing the juice of one lemon. Rinse again in clear water and dry the hair.

Reveal the true color of your hair by using a lemon rinse. Your hair, a woman's crowning glory, provides endless possibilities for dramatizing your personality.

You can make your own hair lacquer to hold unruly hair in place. Cut two lemons into slices, cover with water and boil until the juice is removed from the lemons, five to 10 minutes. Strain and use the liquid just as you would any lacquer, with brush, spray or fingers.

Is your hair a mousy, drab color? Bring it to life with a lemon and sun treatment. Start with your regular shampoo and thorough rinse. Then squeeze and strain the juice of two lemons, adding two cups of warm water to the juice. Pour this mixture over your wet hair, and rub in. Do not rinse out, but towel dry the hair, then sit outside in direct sunlight and brush your hair completely dry.

SKIN—Tired feet? Rub them with lemon slices for that wonderful, cool, refreshing relief.

Tans are going out of style; femininity is starring in today's world of fashion. And lemons are helping bring back that clear white, lovely complexion. Rub half a fresh lemon over your face and neck to keep them lily white.

The normal skin condition is slightly acid, and this acid condition can be maintained by adding just a few drops of lemon juice to water and creams used on the face. Lemon acids are the same ones found in normal healthy skin tissues.

HANDS—To remove offensive odors from hands after cutting onions or garlic; after washing dishes—rub them with sliced lemon. Lemon not only removes offensive cooking odors and stains, but keeps your hands soft and white.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Reader Slowed Down—
Now She Enjoys Life

This week I am letting you in on a few "Why Grow Old?" letters. The following one came from a reader recently.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman:

"The telephone rings. It is someone wanting me to be chairman of some committee, but the answer is, 'No, sorry, but this year I am taking a rest from doing so many things.'"

"That's the way it has been ever since January first a year ago. My husband does not make a large salary and I have always worked outside the home. I have a daughter in high school and a son in college, his first year. Not only this but I was mixed up in so many activities.

"I was approaching menopause age and decided that I would slow down for a while. First I had to get rid of so much cooking. It took a lot of time and when I had guests it exhausted me. I rented out our son's room and the rent money helps pay for the services of a cook from three until six every week day. It is such a treat to walk in, sit down and eat, get up and read the paper, chat with friends or my husband or look at TV. I seldom had time for any of this before.

"I feel like a different person since I have simplified my life. My work at the store seems so much easier and I sleep wonderfully. I am no longer nervous. My voice is softer. It used to be high-pitched because of nervousness.

"This is what I did beside get the help I did. I resigned from three or four clubs I belonged to. I also stopped teaching a Sunday school class so that I can sleep later on Sundays. I do go to church and my circle and to PTA once a month.

"My husband and I go out together several times a week to visit friends or go to a movie or the theatre and then come home and eat sandwiches and drink coffee off the kitchen table or before the fire. I have time and energy now to enjoy life."

It takes nerve and determination to drop activities to which you are accustomed and which folks expect you to continue. But you can do it. Many women are too fatigued to enjoy life because they allow it to become "so complex." How often do you have time to sit in the sunshine, or rock in a chair or lie down to read or listen to music? If life has goaded you into ruts of activity

B.C. Lost Chance For Atomic Plant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry V. Warren, professor of geology at the University of British Columbia, said Monday B.C. has lost out on a "fantastic new industry" — the manufacture of U-235, a uranium by-product.

He told the Vancouver Board of Trade's ad and sales bureau the province missed out on attracting European governments to build an atomic plant here because of delay — due to the fish-versus power controversy — in deciding whether a huge new Fraser River hydro dam at Moran, 110 miles north of here, should be built.

The proposal by six European nations to build an atomic plant

"would have been perfect for B.C.," he said.

Prof. Warren said the European group of countries and NATO were both interested in the suggested $500,000,000 dam.

At Brussels during the week-end, delegates from France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Italy agreed a joint $240,000,000 uranium separation plant should be built. A site for the plant has yet to be selected.

Premier Bennett declined comment today on Prof. Warren's statements.

Lloyd George McNeill, 21, was fined $25 on a charge of careless driving, and was barred from driving for two weeks, as a result of his doing spins with his car on a slippery road.

Police said that McNeill's car spun once on Thursday, possibly by accident, but that the accused did the same thing two or three times more while police were watching.

The labor minister said Mr. Sinclair's "malicious invention" had come from "within the thick shell of arrogance and unreality

JUDY BOOTS

(Batting for Monte Roberts)

I have been asked to say what I think about the proposed by-law which would put a limit on the number of cats allowed to live in any one house in Victoria, namely three cats per house.

Well, to start out with, some of my best friends are cats although most of them don't know it this being a natural hazard for dogs even female-type dogs and especially if they live at the Old Man's house which most people think he doesn't like cats but is not true.

The Old Man is quite willing to be very fond of cats if they are fond of him but there aren't many who are, which shows good judgment I guess on the part of the cats that is.

Although I will give the Old Man his due he is willing to be fond of anything which can learn to be fond of him a tough chore I might add but it can be done if you concentrate and if you realize your best and home is at steak hah hah I made a pun by accident I assure you.

But where was I I must be getting somewhere oh yes I was going to give my opinion on the by-law which would allow only one cat to a household.

Well live and let live I always say which is why I do not chase cats the Old Man thinks it is because I have been trained not to chase cats little does he know I do not chase cats because someday I might catch one and then use it.

I mean woe betide me not the cat.

But live and let live is an excellent motto I think and live and let live is what we should do in re cats.

If somebody wishes to have three cats live at his house why let him have three cats live at his house as long as the three cats wish to live at his house if they do not wish to live there somebody should find another home for them.

But I do not think this can be accomplished by raring back on your hind legs and passing another by-law in the first place if there were a by-law would we have to employ a cat-watcher or a feline-finder to keep tabs on the tabbies hah hah that was another accident funny but still think of where the tax money goes doesn't it?

Also if we place a limit on the number of cats per household where will it all end will we also have a limit on the number of budgie birds and canaries and turtles and small white rabbits and goldfish in the pond and guinea pigs in the aquarium and mosquitos in the bedroom and chickadees in the garden and people-type babies in the playpen I ask you this is a serious matter.

As far as I am concerned I can take cats or leave them alone preferably leave them alone they have sharp claws and I guess the Old Man feels the same way but if people wish to have cats living at their houses why let them have cats and if you have to employ a cat-watcher let him watch the people who have cats and make sure they treat them right and do not let them bother their neighbors or wander around like lost souls or worst of all if people get tired of cats and dump them on the public highway or in the country they should be thrown in jail the people not the cats.

I think if we are going to pass a by-law limiting something we should pass a by-law limiting the number of by-laws.

Why is it that in a line of traffic if the lead car runs into some difficulty the remaining cars always have to pull out and try to go ahead in the face of oncoming traffic. Result usually is a horrible traffic tie-up. If these drivers could only observe a little bit of patience and remain in line they would get where they are going much faster than by trying to make a four-lane highway out of roads that are built to handle two lines of traffic.

This was especially true during the recent snow conditions when drivers seemed bent on getting to their destinations in record time despite hazardous road conditions and traffic delays occasioned by cars in ditches and in trouble on slippery hills.—P.W.S.

Snow Due Wednesday Lake Skating Risky

34-Degree Temperature Predicted for Tonight

Minor snow flurries Wednesday, and rain mixed with snow were predicted today by weatherman William Mackie.

There was some snow today, he said, caused by the passage of a mild storm. He forecast partial clearing tonight, then thickening cloud Wednesday with the approach of a new storm.

Minimum temperature tonight will be 34 degrees, and a maximum of 40 is expected Wednesday. Winds tonight will be southwesterly, then dying down and becoming easterly Wednesday.

Warm air and sunshine Monday, and temperatures just barely in the freezing level overnight, combined to cause considerable thawing on the many ice surfaces in the Greater Victoria district.

Skaters were out in force Monday night. Police banned skating on Goodacre Lake in Beacon Hill Park, but there were skaters on Swan Lake, Glen Lake, Langford Lake and others.

Langford and Swan Lakes were reported today to have water on the surface, and Langford Lake was reported as "spongy."

Snow continued to melt slowly from city streets. Up-island roads were reported in fair condition, with slippery portions well sand.

Two Injured As Car Skids At Keating

Two persons were injured and two cars heavily damaged in an accident Monday at 11:30 p.m. on Patricia Bay Highway near Keating Cross Road.

Taken to Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney were Howard C. Stanley, 3068 Earl Grey, Victoria, driver of one of the cars, and Miss Crystal Burton, 2026 Richmond, a passenger in Stanley's car.

Miss Burton suffered a broken right arm and shoulder injuries, and Mr. Stanley cuts and bruises, but hospital authorities described their condition today as "good."

A second passenger in the Stanley car, Peter Ruzyski, 1615 Richmond, escaped injury.

According to Central Saanich police, the accident occurred when the Stanley car, proceeding north, went into a skid and sideswiped a parked car owned by Archie Casson, 1030 Second Avenue, Sidney.

Damage to both cars was extensive, police said.

Gunsmith Wins Court Battle

Charge of selling a firearm to a 14-year-old minor, laid last week against gunsmith Ralph Wherry, 629 Pandora, was withdrawn in city court today.

Wherry in his defence proved to the prosecution's satisfaction the rifle in question did not constitute a firearm since it shoots a spring-propelled pellet.

Air pistols and weapons using cartridges are firearms, according to definitions in dictionaries consulted by prosecutor Terry O'Grady.

"I can't argue the gun is a firearm," Mr. O'Grady told the court, and withdrew the charge.

Sentence Monday On Scrap Theft In Esquimalt

Sentence on Melvin F. Newton, 695 Baxter, convicted in Esquimalt court Monday of theft of scrap valued over $50 Jan. 5, will be passed next Monday after a probation report has been made.

Metal junk, about 1,200 pounds in all, including three rear-end auto assemblies, two front assemblies and a bumper, was taken from a yard at 878 Viewfield, a storage area kept by William John Temple, 2871 Dyart, owner of the metal.

Newton sold it to Industrial Iron and Metal Trading Co. for $15.06. He said a man in a coal yard next door told him he could take it away.

As used car parts, Temple claimed, the junk was worth about $90.

SENORITA (Mrs. Stewart Stevenson) DE LARA.

ADVICE TO SENORITAS:

Latins for Love, Irish for Marriage

By DINAH KERR

Although love is "the most important thing" in Latin countries, at least one Spanish senorita is glad she married an Irishman.

She is Mrs. Stewart Stevenson, the former Senorita Elvira De Lara, daughter of Countess Isabel de La Roche and the late Senor De Lara, one-time Spanish consul to Mexico.

"I wouldn't marry a Spaniard for anything," she said here today. "The Spaniard and the Irish are both romantic but with the Spaniard, all the romance ends with marriage. With the Irish it continues and gets better—like old wine, you know."

Just returned from a visit in Mexico, Mrs. Stevenson is a travelling agent for her brother's firm, "De Lara Tours."

Former lecturer at the Mexican Spanish Academy in Mexico City, she will open a 15-week course in Spanish at the YMCA Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. A demonstration class will be held Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 8.

Why the Spaniards flit off as soon as the wedding's over, Mrs. Stevenson doesn't know. They go through enough to catch their senoritas.

In the smaller towns of Mexico and Spain, "boy-meets-girl" is a four-month endurance test.

Senoritas thrive on this, said Mrs. Stevenson.

"After all, Spanish women don't do anything but take care of themselves. We don't go out to knock the world on its ear, like Americans do. The Spaniard girl never has to face the hardships of the world. She has a man—good, bad or indifferent—to do it for her."

COMBINED AGE OF 96 YEARS

Two Tired Old Tugs Make Last Run to Shipbreakers

Two grand old ladies of the B.C. towboat industry—their combined ages total 96 years—arrived at Victoria today.

Their destination: the inner harbor shipbreaking yard of Wagner, Stein and Greene.

The veterans of coastal waters are the ex-PGE tug Point Ellice and the Pacific (Coyle) Navigation Co.'s old-timer, Faultless.

Both were purchased by the Victoria shipbreakers at Vancouver. They came here today, with Point Ellice doing her last towing job, and Faultless riding at the end of the towing wire.

Faultless, elder of the two, was launched at New Westminster in 1907. For years she served the Coyle interests faithfully. Hardly a harbor or cove on the B.C. coastal mainland was missed on her thousands of towing jobs.

BOX CAR BARGES

Point Ellice, which entered service in 1911, had a more routine, but just as useful, career. Her job was to tow box car barges from Vancouver to Squamish, providing the water link for the PGE.

Completion of the southern extension of the railroad ended Point Ellice's job—after about

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Is it known who named Nootka? L.D.W.

A.—Yes! The Encyclopedia of Canada gives this account: "Nootka Sound, an inlet on a new career. Point Ellice will melt away before the welder's torch and shipbreaker's hammer."

The two old tugs join a third at the breaker's yard. She is the 1908-built Lillooet, formerly owned by Pacific Towing Ltd.

Gone Forever, It Seems,
Are Little Piglets Banks

By PENNY SAVER

What has happened to the old-fashioned piggy bank? He just grew and grew! Gone are the days of the pudgy little pig that sat on the nursery table, now it seems the piggy bank is almost a piece of furniture. When you see the life-size pig that I found in town, you'll know what I mean. That's right, it's life-size, and bright red. He's as bold as he can be, and hungry . . . This is a real family-size pet. This one is $14.95. Porky has smaller brothers and sisters, still a good size, but small next to him. These are priced at $6.50, $4.25 and $2, and are finished with a suede-like coat. Not quite the same as a piggy bank, but filling the same need, are cuddly honey bear banks, $3, and circus elephants with gay little hats, also $3.

Here's a good buy for you women who need extra-long scarves come with brown, tories curlers, I'm sure. Pure nylon. For just 79 cents, you can have excellent quality nylon scarves that are priced so low, only because they are long length. There are three popular shades from which to choose. For a pleasant change, instead of paying extra for extra length, you're getting a bonus for being long-legged!

Youngsters who love to read will get a real thrill from the wonderful "The Illiad and the Odyssey" book available in town. The stories are presented in such a way to appeal to the young readers, and yet none of the classical atmosphere and beauty is lost. Giant, full-page colored illustrations are spread through the book, making each page a revelation and adventure. These books are $4.95.

Very new and very attractive are curling club emblem scarves that will be favorites with Vic-

There's a worthwhile sale of material on in town right now. I noticed, particularly, 40-inch rayon velvet regularly priced at $3.95, selling for just $2 a yard. The material comes in a lovely, pristine white, or in a deep, rich turquoise. (Any coming brides interested in a good buy for their gown?)

Rather than search around town for the items mentioned here in the column, call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where I found them.

THE BETTER HALF

A Squeeze of Lemon — For Beauty!
Helps Your Hair, Hands, Skin

For centuries the lemon has been the companion of beauty and health. In ancient China the lemon was called LiMung, meaning "beneficial to women." Its beautifying powers were well known to the physicians of the Renaissance. In early days the lemon blossom and fruit were used in love potions. Incense made from fragrant lemon wood was used in religious ceremonies. According to an old legend a lovely Empress seeking to make her complexion as exquisite as the waxen lotus petals, produced a potion from lemons that made her skin even more beautiful than the silken texture of the flower. Enchanted with her discovery, the Empress kept her beauty secret hidden from the world in a jeweled, lacquered box, where it was found after her death.

Modern science has replaced with fact the myth and mystery surrounding the lemon's beautifying power. Today as in ancient times, the woman who treasures lovely complexion and hair ends her search for a beautifier in a product of nature—the lemon.

The beauty of skin and hair are closely related to the health of the body. The hair, skin, hands and nails get their nourishment from the blood, as do other organs of the body; consequently a beauty treatment, to be effective, must be internal as well as external. Fresh lemons are an excellent source of vitamin C—the vitamin that is essential for life, to maintain healthy organs and functions. Vitamin C cannot be stored in the body; hence it must be included in the diet every day. The juice of one lemon provides over half of the recommended daily allowance of this life-preserving vitamin. Lemons are also an outstanding source of the newly discovered "citrus bio-flavonoids."

These bio-flavonoids strengthen the tiny blood vessels (capillaries) found in all parts of the body, and work in conjunction with vitamin C in times of physical stress, such as injury, infection, surgery and colds. Help yourself to normal functioning by starting each day with a glass of hot water, into which has been squeezed the juice of one lemon. Following this "internal" beauty treatment, try these "external" beauty hints for hair, skin and hands.

HAIR—For an easy, economical shampoo, mix together in a quart jar one small box of mild soap flakes, ½ teaspoon mineral oil, two tablespoons fresh lemon juice and one quart hot water; stir well. To store, keep covered.

LEMON SHAMPOO—Beat together one egg yolk, one tablespoon olive oil, juice of ½ lemon. Rub this mixture into scalp well and rinse with lukewarm water containing the juice of one lemon. Rinse again in clear water and dry the hair.

Reveal the true color of your hair by using a lemon rinse. Your hair, a woman's crowning glory, provides endless possibilities for dramatizing your personality.

You can make your own hair lacquer to hold unruly hair in place. Cut two lemons into slices, cover with water and boil until all the juice is removed from the lemon, five to 10 minutes. Strain and use the liquid just as you would any lacquer, with brush, spray or fingers.

Is your hair a mousy, drab color? Bring it to life with a lemon and sun treatment. Start with your regular shampoo and thorough rinse. Then squeeze and strain the juice of two lemons, adding two cups of warm water to the juice. Pour this mixture over your wet hair, and rub in. Do not rinse out, but towel dry the hair, then sit outside in direct sunlight and brush your hair completely dry.

SKIN—Tired feet? Rub them with lemon slices for that wonderful, cool, refreshing relief.

Tans are going out of style; femininity is starring in today's world of fashion. And lemons are helping bring back that clear white, lovely complexion. Rub half a fresh lemon over your face and neck to keep them lily white.

The normal skin condition is slightly acid, and this acid condition can be maintained by adding just a few drops of lemon juice to water and creams used on the face. Lemon acids are the same ones found in normal healthy skin tissues.

HANDS—To remove offensive odors from hands after cutting onions or garlic; after washing dishes—rub them with sliced lemon. Lemon not only removes offensive cooking odors and stains, but keeps your hands soft and white.

Baby Boy Christened

Wearing his godmother's gift of a lace and nylon christening gown, the baby son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. was held at the home of the maternal grandmother, Mrs. K. English, 1037 Lyall Street. Among the special guests were the baby's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. S. Hobbs, of Sidney. Mrs. Bloomfield proposed a toast in champagne to the wee honor guest. A christening cake centred the lace-covered table. Luncheon was served. Other guests included Mrs. R. McCoy of Sidney, Mrs. R. F. LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About addressing your elders:

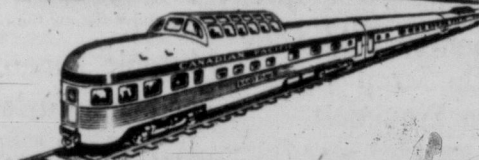

Years ago children were taught to address their elders formally by either Mr. or Mrs. Jones. What has happened to this teaching? My boy 2½ years old, and I feel he should be taught this practice. Am I old-fashioned?

Louise Davis answers:

No, you are not old-fashioned, although we must admit that there has been a gradual change in customs over the years from the formal to the informal. Respect for elders, however, still stands and I am optimistic enough to think it will continue.

I hope you will stick to your principles in teaching your child to address one as Mrs. Jones, rather than by her first name. But some names are too difficult for a very young one to pronounce. You learned the hard way, so why can't all children?

First attempts are often hard to recognize, but to try is self discipline and good training. However, I'm sure that your little boy can't very well say "Mrs. Schwartzkopf," but he could say "Aunt Jean" as a temporary compromise. Children such as yours aren't aware of respect or disrespect when addressing an elder, so it shouldn't be shocking if he takes the easy way of calling her "Jean." After a while, you can teach him the right way, and he will quickly learn the meaning of respect and good manners.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Reader Slowed Down—
Now She Enjoys Life

This week I am letting you in on a few "Why Grow Old?" letters. The following one came from a reader recently.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: It is someone wanting me to be chairman of some committee, but the answer is, 'No' sorry, but this year I am taking a rest from doing so many things."

"That's the way it has been ever since January first a year ago. My husband does not make a large salary and I have always worked outside the home. I have a daughter in high school and a son in college. The first year. Not only this but I was mixed up in so many activities."

"I was approaching menopause age and decided that I would slow down for a while. First I had to get rid of so much cooking. It took a lot of time and when I had guests it exhausted me. I rented out our son's room and the rent money helps pay for the services of a cook from three until six every week day. It is such a treat to walk in, sit down and eat, get up and read the paper, chat with friends or my husband or look at TV. I seldom had time for any of this before."

"I feel like a different person since I have simplified my life. My work at the store seems so much easier and I sleep wonderfully. I am no longer nervous. My voice is softer. It used to be high-pitched because of nervousness."

"This is what I did beside get the help I did. I resigned from three or four clubs I belonged to. I also stopped teaching a Sunday school class so that I can sleep later on Sundays. I do go to church and my circle and to PTA once a month."

"My husband and I go out together several times a week to visit friends or go to a movie or the theatre and then come home and eat sandwiches and drink coffee off the kitchen table or before the fire. I have time and energy now to enjoy life."

It takes nerve and determination to drop activities to which you are accustomed and which folks expect you to continue. But you can do it. Many women are too fatigued to enjoy life because they allow it to become so complex. How often do you have time to sit in the sunshine, or rock in a chair or lie down to read or listen to music? If life has goaded you into a rut of activity

Gulf of Aqaba to separate Egyptian and Israeli forces and to govern navigation in waters having such an international interest.

Pearson said the problem with which the assembly had been dealing now is coming to a head with consequences of vital importance to everyone and perhaps even for peace.

It was not only a problem of an Israeli withdrawal, though that was the first order of priority.

"It is the problem not only of making arrangements for security in the unsettled border areas and for free navigation but for making such arrangements here which will be agreed on in this assembly but which would take effect only after Israel had accepted the decision of the United Nations to withdraw."

Pearson said many delegations would have great difficulty in accepting the position that the assembly could take no decision until after the withdrawal itself.

"If, on the other hand, Israel does not agree to complete an immediate withdrawal and to a proposal for a reasonable solution of related problems which would be acceptable to these problems, Israel would be in the position of having taken the responsibility of having rejected the decisions of the United Nations and remaining where she is without any After-Meal Distress?

(BB) "THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND" (Capitol)—The world is young Tab Hunter's oyster. The son of a wealthy father and a doting, spoiling mother, he has life scaled carefully to his own personal measurement.

He'll take his time going through college, first an arts degree, then several years at law school and as many more years after that as his old man can afford. Then he'll relax and do as little of nothing as possible for the rest of his life.

UNFORTUNATELY for Mr. Hunter, his dream world is about to crash about his indolent ear. Girl friend Natalie Wood takes a dim view of his spineless attack on life and his draft-dodging tendencies and returns the boy so much that he can't concentrate on his exams and fails. This is the signal Uncle Sam has been waiting for and it is but a thin, quick step from his rosy-hued Utopia into the world of reality—the army.

So far so good for Marion ("See Here, Private Hargrove") Hargrove's yarn about the life of a boy who is an army-hating, army-baiting young rebel in uniform. But from there on it takes on much the same tone as many other such pictures of a boy's private personal war with the army. At first it's fun but something is lost when one knows from the start that the army is going to win anyway.

THERE ARE a number of chucklesome ingredients invoked into Warner's "The Girl He Left Behind" that make the film worthwhile. Sergeant Murray Hamilton who wants to see his inductees greeting the new day standing "bushy-tailed and tall in the morning" is excellent as he promises that if they cause him "to be chewed" by his superiors they'll be so much grass behind and he'll be the law-mower.

NATALIE WOOD is also good as the girl who wants something more from would-be soldier Hunter than "passion." Indeed she has come a long way from "Rebel Without a Cause," the picture that brought

B.C. Drama Festival Opens Tonight

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Little Theatre is taking a proven vehicle this week in the hope of repeating on last year's victory in the British Columbia regional drama festival.

With director Joan Chapman guiding the production, the amateur theatre group will present "Anastasia," which has won no little acclaim in a movie version.

The Vancouver group will be the last of four amateur theatre clubs to perform at the 17th annual B.C. Festival, which opens here tonight.

VLT last year, reached the Dominion finals at Sherbrooke, Que. Two of the other three groups have been frequent entries in previous B.C. festivals.

The Vagabond Players from nearby New Westminster will stage Arthur Miller's tragic "Death of a Salesman" tonight in the opening performance in York Theatre.

Wednesday night will see the White Rock Players perform "The House of Bernarda Alba," and Thursday night's performance of "Blithe Spirit," by Noel Coward, will feature a new entrant to the regional festival—The Chilliwack Little Theatre.

Cecil Bellamy of London is the adjudicator.

This year's finalists across Canada converge on Edmonton for the Dominion Drama Festival, May 20-25.

AT TIME-AND-A-HALF RAILMEN WAIT HAPPILY

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP)—Collecting pay at overtime rates, 23 railroaders waited today in a tiny station atop 10,022-foot Cumbres Pass for a relief train to plow out 20-foot snowdrifts that have stranded them since Saturday.

The station is amply stocked with food and fuel. Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad officials said, and the men are receiving time-and-a-half pay for all hours beyond the first eight since they left Chama, N.M., Saturday morning.

The 23 were aboard a two-engine work train sent to clear snow from the branch line along the Colorado-New Mexico border. The train stalled near the summit of the pass.

The railroad agent at Chama, Amos Cordova, reported there is 240 inches of snow on the pass.

Civic Documents Microfilmed; 2 Copies for Separate Vaults

Microfilming of city hall documents will provide two copies of the most important items, one set to be stored in a vault elsewhere.

City comptroller Dennis A. Young explained the plan will ensure against loss of records if some catastrophe demolished the hall.

He said the second copies will be stored in a vault at the City Health and Welfare Building on Cook Street.

The system of maintaining two sets of vital records is being promoted by Civil Defence authorities in the United States to ensure areas can rebuild in the event of nuclear attack.

The city has been transferring records to film for almost one month and will continue the program in the future.

Cost of duplicating such vital records as the tax roll were estimated at $2,000. The action is taken locally as a protection against fire rather than as a CD precaution.
